

Possible Veto Of Farm Bill May Result in New Problem

Roosevelt Says Congress Failed to Keep Promise

NEED REVENUE

No Taxes Provided to Meet Unbudgeted Benefit Payments

Washington (AP)—A report from usually well-informed persons that President Roosevelt might veto the $1,218,000,000 farm bill threw an added complication today into congressional efforts to revise the tax structure.

The chief executive has asserted repeatedly that congress failed last year to keep a promise that new revenues would be raised to meet certain farm benefit payments. He is considering disapproving the pending farm measure, it was said, because the senate wrote in $338,000,000 of unbudgeted farm benefit payments, without voting new taxes to finance them.

Congressional action on the measure has not yet been completed, but a joint senate-house conference committee is expected to agree on retention of the benefit payments. If the president vetoes the bill, three courses of action will be open to the congress:

Three Alternatives

Overriding the veto by a two-thirds vote of both houses.

Enacting an appropriation minus the unbudgeted benefits.

Enacting taxes to meet benefit payments and then re-approving the outlays in a new appropriation measure.

Secretary Wallace was reported to be using all his influence with the president to win approval of the farm measure. On the other hand, some advisers, including Vice President Garner, have been represented by some senators to be suggesting that the chief executive should veto the bill.

The house ways and means committee is considering revision of the corporate tax structure, but has given no attention to possible new taxes to finance farm outlays.

Would Extend Powers

Acting in another field of interest to business, a senate banking subcommittee voted last yesterday to extend for two years the administration's powers to revalue the dollar further, to maintain the $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund and to buy domestically-mined silver at prices above those on the world silver market.

(The stabilization fund was created to steady the value of the dollar in foreign exchange.)

The subcommittee divided five to four in favor of continuing the devaluation power. The full banking committee will consider the legislation Tuesday.

Larger Files Plea For Referendum on Old Age Pension Plan

Bismarck, N. D.—(AP)—A certified statement declaring 31,005 signatures had been filed on a referendum petition forcing a special election before July 11 was handed Governor John Moses today by Secretary of State James D. Gronna.

The signatures were filed by former Governor William Langer and his committee for the aged to refer House Bill 1, an act passed by the last legislature abolishing the office of grain storage commissioner.

Also certified to the governor by Gronna were statements declaring there were sufficient signatures filed on three initiated proposals, also sponsored by Langer, to place them on the ballot.

The initiated proposals would establish a gross income tax, a system of municipal liquor stores and a highway construction fund for the biennium, diverting road funds to other uses.

The three initiated proposals were proposed by Langer and his committee to obtain sufficient revenue to pay $40 monthly minimum old age pensions and additional funds for relief and the general fund.

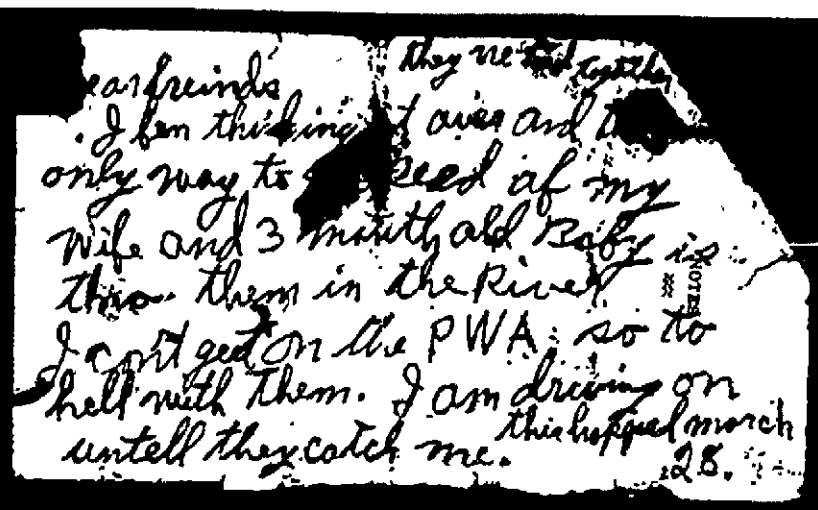

Catches 4½-Pound Small Mouth Bass

"Easiest catch I ever made," said G. F. Boyd of Kansas City of the 4½-pound small mouth bass he captured in Lake of the Ozarks. Cruising in his motorboat, the proprietor struck the fish and stunned it. It floated to the surface and Boyd picked it up. A new kind of fish story. PHOTOGRAPHIC COPY OF MYSTERY NOTE

No clues as to the origin of the mystery note, which tells of the murder of a mother and child, were uncovered yesterday by Sheriff John Lappen. The note was turned over to the sheriff yesterday by Richard Olmsted, route 1, Bear Creek, who said he found it in a bottle on the bank of the Embarras river near Bear Creek. The photographic copy shows the writing on the front and back of the paper.

Continues Check On Mystery Note Hinting Murders

No Clues on Origin of Message Found in Bot- tle Near River

Sheriff John Lappen today continued his search for the origin of the mystery note which he received yesterday from a farmer who found it in a bottle on the bank of the Embarras river near Bear Creek. The note, signed by "a sick man," states that he tied his wife and baby together and threw them into the river because he was unable to get PWA employment.

A check with authorities of the towns along the river in the vicinity of the spot where the note was found revealed no clues yesterday. Sheriff Lappen said that the bottle might have been tossed into the river from some point farther up the stream which has three branches.

He planned to contact authorities farther up the river today to find whether any family has been reported missing. The note stated that the writer threw his wife and 3-month-old baby into the river on March 28.

Sheriff Lappen said that the note might be a prank, as it is unlikely the bodies would not have been found since that date. However, he pointed out that if the bodies were tied together and weighted down, they might be at the bottom of the river.

The writer of the note said he planned to keep "driving on until they catch me."

1,200 Troopers End Their Third Week in Kentucky Mine Areas

Harlan, Ky.—(AP)—Approximately 1,200 national guardsmen rounded out their third week of duty today in Harlan county's soft coal field where operators and the United Mine Workers of America (UMW) have been deadlocked in negotiations for a new working contract.

Brigadier General Ellerbe Carter, directing the troops, reported continued calm throughout the area, scene of many bitter labor struggles in the past.

Only the unsuccessful "striking" of miners reported at a Liggett, Ky., pit Thursday has ruffled the county's serenity since the first week after Governor A. B. Chandler dispatched militiamen to Harlan to "protect men who want to work."

While troops—as well as negotiations—virtually have marked time the last few days, the military found a tense Harlan county when they first entered it May 14. Sporadic shootings, brief skirmishes along both picket and national guard lines and other disturbances were reported within a few days.

Strike Threatens Vital Food Shortage in East

New York (AP)—A shortage of vital foodstuffs threatened metropolitan New York today, after 1,500 warehousemen, seeking a new contract, went out on strike.

Paralyzed by the walkout was the movement of millions of pounds of meat, butter, eggs, vegetables, fruits and other fresh and frozen foods through 22 cold storage warehouses here and in New Jersey.

Asking a $5 pay rise to $40 a week, and two-weeks vacations for checkers and laborers, the Inland Warehousemen's union, (A. F. of L.) ordered the stoppage. Alexander M. M. chairman of an employers' committee, said the workers had been offered $37.50 and one-week vacations.

TWO BOYS DROWN

Winona, Minn.—(AP)—Two boys, Jack Griffith, 10, and Robert Larson, 9, both of Winona, drowned in Lake Winona today when the lake's flat bottomed boat they were rowing sank 50 feet from shore.

All Senators and Wives Get Invitation to Attend Garden Party for British Royal Pair

Washington (AP)—The home life of a good many United States senators became somewhat less complicated today when word got around that they and their wives would get to attend the garden party for King George and Queen Elizabeth, after all.

Nearly half the 96 members of the senate—and their wives—were omitted from the original list of guests invited by Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British ambassador, and Lady Lindsay to the party to be given on the embassy lawn June 8. Many members of the house were left out, too. In the main, only chairmen of standing committees and members of the foreign affairs committees got invitations.

Publicly, the uninited law-makers professed to be indifferent. But not so their wives.

Attack Tavern Patrons; Four Go to Hospital

14 Assailants Wear Briggs Local Insignia, Police Assert

ONE SUSPECT NAMED

Detroit (AP)—Fourteen men who, police said, wore the insignia of the Briggs local, United Automobile Workers, tipped over tables and assaulted patrons in a tavern, at 10 o'clock a. m. today, apparently to avenge the ejection of an automobile worker.

Four of the customers required hospital treatment. Several women were handled roughly.

Emil Mazey, president of the Briggs local whose members are on strike, said he doubted if Briggs workers were involved. He said the man in charge of the union's "flying squadron" last night told him of investigating a report of a fight in a beer garden, but asserted that "it was all over when he arrived."

Lloyd R. Cash, an employee of the Hudson Motor Car company, was identified by police as the man ejected from the tavern. Officers said he declined to tell where he recruited his aids. He was detained for investigation.

William H. Sabata, proprietor of the tavern, said Cash was ejected for using foul language.

Returned With Others

"He came back an hour later with 13 other men," Sabata told police. "They were armed with foot-long lengths of heavy chain, chair legs and canes. The last of the 14 to enter drew a revolver and turned it toward the customers."

"The other 13, without saying anything, started in to beat up the customers. Several women were knocked down. Furniture was tipped over."

Meanwhile, negotiations to settle the biggest tieup in the automotive industry since the 1937 sit-down strikes were stalemated.

The strike was called May 22 by the CIO United Automobile Workers against the Briggs Manufacturing company, builders of auto bodies.

James F. Dewey, federal labor conciliator, had been hopeful of settling the dispute within a few days after both sides had accepted his findings as mediator in more than a score of union grievances, but after the negotiations were adjourned yesterday until Monday he remarked:

"Both sides were so far apart it seemed unlikely to continue the meetings at this time."

Map 8-Point Plan To Help Business Manufacturers' Program Aims to Create Jobs, Employ Idle Capital

Washington (AP)—An eight-point program of tax revision, designed to "put idle men, idle machinery and idle funds to work," was recommended to the house ways and means committee today by the National Association of Manufacturers.

Noel Sargent, secretary of the association, presented the program with a declaration that it would go far to promote the objectives outlined last week by Secretary Morgenthau, that is, increased flow of capital into private industry and the promotion of tax equity.

The recommendations, paralleling many of those made by Morgenthau follow:

"Reduction of federal surtax rates which discourage investment of savings in private industry; abolition of the present capital gains and losses tax provisions; exemption of corporate dividends to individuals from normal income tax since this involves double taxation; elimination of the taxation of intercorporate dividends which results in double taxation, abolition of the undistributed earnings tax and the combined excess profits and capital stock taxes; elimination of the ban on consolidated returns; and of the ban on offsetting previous capital losses against current profits."

Politician Convicted Of Part in Drug Ring

Kansas City (AP)—Angelo "Bossie" Negro, saloonkeeper and ward politician, was convicted today of being involved in a $12,000,000-a-year midwestern narcotic ring, after the jury had listened to him shout "I'm innocent," while tears streamed down his cheeks.

The verdict followed quickly Negro's demonstrative appearance on the witness stand. Negro, who was carrying a deputy constable's commission when arrested, was convicted of selling narcotics.

Recently another saloonkeeper, Angelo Donnicci, whose place of business was just around the corner from the federal building, was convicted as the accused head of the ring.

William Meehan, a co-defendant of Negro, also was convicted today. The three will be sentenced Tuesday.

Chief Justice Hughes Ill; 'Full Recovery' Seen, Official Says

Washington (AP)—Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes is suffering from a "duodenal ulcer," but it was said officially today that "there is no reason to doubt his full recovery."

The illness of the 77-year-old chief justice was made known in a statement by Nelson A. Porter, assistant clerk of the court in charge of press relations. The statement said:

"The chief justice will be unable to attend court on Monday as he is suffering a duodenal ulcer and it is necessary for him to have the immediate and usual treatment of complete rest and specific diet."

"He will thus be confined to his bed for a while and will be unable to take part in the welcome to their Britannic majesties or to attend the dinner in their honor at the White House and the garden party and dinner at the British embassy."

"There is no reason to doubt his full recovery but he must have a complete rest for the time being."

Charges Dropped After Judge Resigns Post

Tomahawk, Wis.—(AP)—Commissioner Otto Bessard, a LaCrosse attorney, yesterday dismissed charges against Municipal Judge Ellsworth C. Smith, who Thursday offered his resignation to Governor Julius P. Heil.

The dismissal came as the result of the resignation, at the hearing conducted by Bessard on charges by Claude Yenne, Tomahawk grocer and fourth ward supervisor, that $300 in court fines had not been turned over to the city.

Judge Smith said he would resume the practice of law in Tomahawk.

Hope Is Abandoned for 98 Aboard Submarine in Worst Undersea Disaster

Hatchet Slaying Suspect at Waukesha Faces First Degree Charge in Death of Widow

Waukesha, Wis.—(AP)—Edward Abel, 45, who District Attorney Scott Lowry said had confessed the hatchet slaying of Mrs. Olive LeRoy, 76-year-old widow, was arraigned in municipal court today on a charge of first degree murder and a hearing was set for June 8.

Abel did not enter a plea, and his attorney, Herman Salen, said the hearing later might be waived and Abel taken directly into circuit court.

Lowry and Sheriff Alvin J. Redford said Abel signed a confession shortly after his arrest late yesterday afternoon, five hours after Mrs. LeRoy's body was found in the home of Abel's estranged wife, Marguerite.

Abel was arrested five hours after the body of Mrs. LeRoy was found in the home of his estranged wife, Marguerite.

Abel gave as his motive, Sheriff Alvin J. Redford said, that Mrs. LeRoy had "permitted" another man to visit his wife.

Formerly Of Milwaukee

The Abels formerly resided in Milwaukee with Mrs. LeRoy. Thursday night Mrs. LeRoy went to Mrs. Abel's home for an extended stay.

Friday morning, the sheriff quoted Abel in his confession, he went to the home and berated Mrs. LeRoy, telling her she "had no right" to let another man visit his wife, referring to their Milwaukee residence.

Then, the confession continued, he took a hatchet from the storeroom and struck Mrs. LeRoy "two or three times," mopped up the blood, put her body beside a day-bed, drank a cup of coffee and a quarter of a pint of whisky, and went away.

The quarrel was heightened, Abel was quoted, because Mrs. LeRoy told him the man in question was going to visit Mrs. Abel again Friday night at 8 o'clock.

Redford said Abel was sentenced to state prison March 13, 1933, on a charge of larceny of chickens, and had been arrested several other times on drunken misconduct charges filed by Mrs. Abel.

Mrs. Abel said she had not seen her husband for two months. He left her Waukesha home to enter the Soldiers' home in Milwaukee, and was released on furlough Thursday. Mr. LeRoy's body was discovered after a school girl noticed a lower panel of the Abel's door had been broken. Abel was quoted as saying he forced an entrance. The child called her mother and Mrs. Abel, who lived across the street on a WPA sewing project, and they discovered the body.

Neighbors reported having seen a man leave the home, and after one was reported seen in the Seitz woods, three miles south of the city a posse was formed. Three hours after the search of the woods began, Deputy Sheriff Clifford O'Brien offered no resistance.

The first degree murder warrant was issued by Lowry last night after Redford and Lowry reported Abel's confession.

Juneau Dentist Denies Guilt in Extortion Case

Juneau (AP)—Dr. Francis L. O'Neill, Juneau dentist charged with extortion of $1,400, denied any guilt today as he testified at his preliminary hearing before Justice of the Peace Alphons Krueger.

O'Neill, who is 61, and Eugene Klink, an attendant at the Dodge county poor farm, were named in warrants charging extortion from Henry Lehmann, former Dodge county sheriff, and his wife, Clara, upon threat of starting libel action against Mrs. Lehmann in connection with an anonymous letter investigators said she wrote.

The case is one of five arising out of a recent John Doe investigation of the county asylum and poor farm.

"I attended several conferences at which the letter was discussed," Dr. O'Neill testified, "but at no time did I want or ask for any money."

Dr. O'Neill admitted that he received $200 of the reported $1,400 settlement.

Charge Supplies Diverted

The letter, sent to Nicholas Klink, father of Eugene and former superintendent of the institutions, said supplies had been diverted from the institutions.

Testifying for the state, Lehmann said Eugene Klink told him about the letter and "said it was going to cost me plenty of money." Lehmann said it was arranged that he and his wife go to a lawyer's office. Several conferences were held, he added. The first "settlement" he continued, was set at between $700 and $800. The price later went to $1,200, Lehmann testified.

"Then I wrote out a check for $1,400," Lehmann testified. "I was told the amount was raised again because of more expenses such as hiring detectives and trips to Chicago. I was afraid they would try and send my wife to Taycheedah. I didn't understand that it was a civil action case; they kept talking a warrant."

John Bauschek, former Milwaukee police inspector, and Frank Probska, former Milwaukee detective captain, testified they were retained by the defendants to investigate the letter. They said they traced it to Mrs. Lehmann and that she admitted writing it. When she was asked why she wrote it, they testified, she said "to get even."

U. S. Navy Speeds Building Plans

Washington (AP)—The navy's action in ordering 24 warships at once, aimed at lopping months off the time required to build them, appeared today to reflect official concern over Japan's mounting sea power.

Announcing the $330,000,000 order—the largest since the World war—Assistant Secretary Charles Edison expressed belief that Japan already had shortened to about 5-to-4 the 5-to-3 margin of United States superiority in total tonnage, which was established by now-defunct treaties.

"Even with our 10-year building program we won't be able to restore the treaty 5-5-3 ratio in all categories and total tonnage," he predicted.

Japan and Great Britain were building ships in the years when we were idle.

Edison indicated this country's tonnage was not equal to Britain's now, as provided in the 5-5-3 ratio.

The United States' 10-year building program was laid out by the billion-dollar fleet expansion bill which congress approved last year, authorizing a 20 per cent increase in tonnage.

In the number of combatant ships in full commission or fully manned Japan leads both the United States and Britain, congress heard recently from Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of operations.

On Jan. 1, Japan had 223 warcraft in service, compared with 193 American and 204 British.

Confesses Story He Was Kidnaped Was 'Imagination'

Center City, Minn.—(AP)—Chicago County Attorney Carl W. Gustafson last night said Harry Hjelmeberg, 23, Chicago City garage worker, who told of being kidnaped, slugged and drugged, confessed the incident was a hoax.

While under the influence of liquor Tuesday night, the county attorney said, Hjelmeberg "imagined he saw two men at his home" and he "decided that one of the men wanted him to drive to Lindstrom."

Hjelmeberg told of driving for some time, pulling his car into a side road and going to sleep. Early Wednesday, not knowing where he was, Hjelmeberg said, he walked to Amery, Wis., and called his brother, Reinhold, who came to get him. The automobile was discovered 10 miles south of Amery.

At St. Croix Falls, Wis., he feigned serious illness and was taken to a hospital where he remained until this afternoon when he was brought to Center City for questioning.

Declares She 'Didn't Mean' to Steal Baby In Philadelphia Case

Philadelphia (AP)—Blonde Beatrice Wood was held without bail on an abduction charge today as she cried at a brief but melodramatic hearing that she "didn't mean" to steal another woman's baby in a scheme to marry her sweetheart.

She admitted taking five-month-old Gerald McCrohan from his carriage Thursday while the child's mother slept.

The boy was returned unharmed to his parents yesterday after detectives found him with Frederick Bauers, 23, who Miss Wood said was her sweetheart.

"Oh, daddy, I didn't mean to take the baby! I didn't mean to," the girl sobbed convulsively to her father, John Wood.

Miss Wood said she wanted Gerald to replace her own child who died four days after birth.

"I took the baby because he looked so much like Fred," she related tearfully. "I love Fred so and I wanted to keep his love. I wanted him to marry me."

Bauers, who was released after questioning, vowed he would "stick by Beatrice."

Week's Weather

Upper Mississippi and lower Missouri valleys—Fair and warmer Monday and Tuesday; shower period Wednesday to Friday; fair Saturday; cooler Thursday and Friday.

Northern and central great plains—Generally fair Monday; period of scattered showers Tuesday to Thursday; fair Friday and Saturday; warmer Monday, cooler middle of week, warmer toward close.

British Press in Demand for 'Stern' Probe of Tragedy

London (AP)—Demands for a "stern inquiry and rigorous judgment" concerning the Thetis submarine disaster and the probable death of 98 seamen, officers and civilians were voiced today in the British press.

There was comment hinting at inefficiency and two questions were asked repeatedly: Might not a diving bell such as that used in the sinking of the Squalus in the United States have been of service, and why was the Thetis allowed to go on a test run unaccompanied by a "mother ship?"

The Daily Mail said: "At a later date there are many questions which must be answered. The nation will want to know: Why the Thetis crashed; why she was allowed to do her tests in a bay notorious for sunken wreckage; why no escort vessel was attached to this new type submarine during the perils of early diving trials; why she was allowed to be lost for over 15 hours. These matters await a stern inquiry and rigorous judgment. For the present the only criticism holds a voice muted in an overwhelming sense of loss."

The Daily Telegraph raised the question regarding the diving bell after reviewing rescue work on the Squalus, which went down off Portsmouth, N. H., May 23, with 26 lost and 33 saved, the latter by means of the diving bell.

The Daily Sketch also asked whether a diving bell might have been used and concluded, "but these are matters for experts who may decide that the circumstances were by no means parallel."

Wants 'Rigorous Judgment' in Loss of Sub- marine, Occupants

London (AP)—The admiralty officially abandoned hope for the Thetis submarine disaster today at 4:30 p. m. (9:30 a. m. C.S.T.) today. The admiralty issued the following statement:

"The admiralty regret that there is now no longer justification for hope that any further lives can be saved from the Thetis. Salvage work proceeds."

Birkenhead, England.—(AP)—Hope of rescuing any of the 98 men in the wrecked submarine Thetis was abandoned officially today at the offices of Cammell Laird, Ltd., which built the vessel, and it was stated the men probably had died from chlorine gas.

Defeat for the rescuers meant the heaviest loss of life in history in an undersea craft.

An official of Cammell Laird announced shortly after 3 o'clock p. m. (8 a. m. C.S.T.):

"We have now no hope of saving further lives."

"We consider that the men died from chlorine gas. It was carried a large quantity of chlorine which we think would have escaped, owing to the angle at which she laid."

The new $1,500,000 Thetis became imbedded in mud at a 45-degree angle during a test dive at 1:40 p. m. (6:40 a. m. C.S.T.) Thursday. The 265-foot craft was in water only 130 feet deep, and when first found Friday morning 18 feet of her tail were above the surface.

Tide Wrecks Efforts

While attempts were being made to keep this part of the craft above water, a strong tide came in about dusk Friday and, after the tail had been visible for seven hours, swept it undersea.

Then the tide slackened the tail failed to reappear. It was at this point that the admiralty and the builders first disclosed to the public grave fears that any lives would be saved in addition to those of four men who had escaped yesterday morning by the Davis "lung."

Why more men failed to follow the four remained one of the many mysteries of the tragedy.

Even before the announcement that the men probably had died of gas, little hope had been held that they still were alive.

Three men were listed tentatively as dead in unsuccessful attempts to escape from the submarine 14 miles off Great Ormes head, in the Irish sea west of Liverpool. Her forward compartment was flooded.

Even among the crowd of sorrowing relatives at the Cammell Laird offices abandoned hope was evident. An announcement from the offices, which proved erroneous, that the admiralty had stated (appings were heard as late as 4 a. m. (9 p. m. C. S. T. Friday) created a little stir among the crowd.

Try to Raise Stern

The wife of F. Shaw, one of the four men who escaped, quoted him as saying that even when he left the submarine yesterday the air was foul and "getting dreadful."

Salvage operations today were directed mainly at attempting to raise the stern so that a hole could be cut through the hull.

R. S. Johnston, managing director of Cammell Laird, said the Thetis had been involved in previous though minor mishaps.

Study of the few established facts available only made the "what and why" as to the cause of the Thetis accident more baffling.

Thilmany Mill Has 380 Days Without Lost Time Accident

Kaukauna — With no lost time from accidents since Dec. 5, 1938, the Thilmany Mill and Paper company's upper mill now has run 380 days without a mishap on an all-time record, according to L. C. Smith, personnel director. June will be the last month of the national safety contest which began Jan. 1, 1938.

On Monday the May 510 award will be made. Employees of mill departments in which there were no accidents are eligible for the prize. Wilmer Parker, 1117 Crooks avenue, received the April prize.

Schuler to Hurl For Brew Squad Against Chuters

Undeafed Kaukauna Team Will Seek Fifth Victory Sunday

Kaukauna — With no baseball for the last two weeks the season's biggest crowd is forecast as the undeafed mellow Brews entertain Little Chute here, at 2:15 Sunday afternoon. After a snappy workout last night Manager Joey Vils announced that Eddie Schuler would take the mound to strive for his fourth win of the year. Schuler has taken the measure of Menasha, Oshkosh and Green Bay, with Bob Gresenz responsible for the victory over New London.

The Kaw lineup will be Ves Kappell, centerfield, Joey Vils, right field, Icky Van Drasek, second base, Ralph Wurdinger, first base, Gib Busse, left field, Joey Gertz, third base, Carl Schuler, shortstop, Junior Martens, catch, and Schuler, pitcher.

Call Will Perform Johnny Call, tall right-hander from Tamaqua, with Kimberly of the Northern State loop last year, will be the Chuters' flinger. Last week Call set the slugging Green Bay nine down with only five hits, but his mates were powerless at the plate and took their fourth straight loss 5 to 0.

Three more veterans of last year's Kimberly outfit will show for the visitors, in Orville Bongers at shortstop, Manager Baker Versteegen at third and Cashman in the outfield. Other regulars are Jocko Strick, catch, Boots, centerfield, Wildenberg, right field, Van Dyke, first base and Hammen, second base.

Miss Ruth Conlon Is Visiting With Parents

Kaukauna — Miss Ruth Conlon, Chicago, is visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Conlon, Sr., 711 Lawe street.

Gene Driessen, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Driessen, 134 Sarah street, is home from Loyola university at New Orleans.

Mr. and Mrs. Steve Siebers and son, Raymond, of Longview, Wash., are spending a month in Kaukauna with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lunner, Edgewood, Minn., and Mr. and Mrs. George Lynch, Barnesville, Minn., are guests at the home of Mrs. George Brenzel.

Methodists Will Hold Service for Children

Kaukauna — A children's day service will be held tomorrow morning at Brokaw Memorial Methodist church, according to the Rev. L. F. Green, pastor. At 9 o'clock at Sunday school, breakfast will be served at Epworth home, with a children's program presented at the 10:45 service. Young people who have been taking a study course since the first of the year will be received into the church.

High School Seniors Finish Examinations

Kaukauna — High school seniors finished their examinations yesterday, with other classes to write final tests Monday afternoon and Tuesday morning. Class night will be held Wednesday evening, with the graduation exercises on Friday.

Johnny Weissmuller and Maureen O'Sullivan again play Tarzan and his Mate in the new feature based on Edgar Rice Burroughs' famous jungle character. But the new and important addition to the cast is "Boy" otherwise known as Johnny Sheffield, who will be Tarzan, Jr. in "Tarzan Finds a Son!"

By Jimmie Fidler Hollywood—I'm not easily startled by talk of "big money" in Hollywood, but yesterday I heard figures on Mary Pickford's wealth that left me gasping. According to my informant, who's in a position to know, her statement of worth would include such items as these: 60 acres in Beverly Hills (approximate value, $750,000), 18 acres occupied by the United Artists Studio, together with all improvements (list that at about $5,000,000), a one-twentieth interest in the United Artists corporation (worth 2 to 3 millions), a one-fifth interest in the United Artists theater (another 2 to 3 millions), various residences, ranches and an enormous block of Bank of America stock. Her total wealth, I'm told is between 15 and 20 millions! I know, of course, that Mary was "well-fixed"—but I didn't dream that she was a lady Croesus.

I hear Pickford fancies—and they're still legion—bemoan the fact that America's sweetheart is idle while a girl like Carole Lombard earns $150,000 a picture. Perhaps they'll be consoled by the knowledge that Mary's income, computed at only 4 per cent, must be somewhere between $600,000 and $800,000 annually. (Hyuh, Carole? ...)

Not one of today's stars has a chance to amass a fortune like that. They are limited to salaries and bonuses, for the business men in command of the industry, having at last gained exclusive ownership of the production melon, will never again consent to divide it with actors and actresses.

ODD-FORMATION: One of Hollywood's most profitable by-products is the manufacture of imitation jewelry—H. B. Crouch, dean of that business, employs a staff of more than twenty workmen. If you think of Ginger Rogers as the cynopion—her favorite musical number is "Parky's Concerto in D Minor." Parky's Concerto is an expert citrus cultist and his most prized possession is a tree which, via his grafting, produces seven varieties of fruit. And, speaking of hobbies, a chuckle for Fred MacMurray's—carving little horses in wood.

An amusing story this morning from the "Rabes in Arms" set at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. They were shooting a scene representing the old Palace Theater in New York. Charles Whelan, playing a vaudeville headliner, had just been informed that he was a father and the news was being circulated in whispers through the orchestra. "It's a boy," "It's a boy," each musician turned and passed the news along—all but one, Randy Reburn, who emerged from a trance to ask excitedly "How do you know? Who told you?" The director stopped the scene. "That's not your line," he complained. Reburn blushed. "I know it," he said. "But, you see, we're expecting."

Kaukauna Alumni Will Hold Annual Rally at High School

Kaukauna — A week from today Kaukauna High school alumni will gather for their fourth annual rally at the high school. This year an alumni supper will be held at 6:30 in the gymnasium.

The rally program is slated to get under way about 7:30, with James Kavanagh, Brown county agricultural agent and a graduate of 1910, as rally master. The class of 1939 will be welcomed into the alumni association. Graduates have been invited as guests at the supper.

Dr. George Krahn, who was graduated in 1905 and now practices at Oconto Falls, will give the address of welcome to the 1939 seniors. Others tentatively slated to make brief remarks are Ed Weston, captain of the outstanding football teams of 1902 and 1903, who now lives at Evanston, Ill., Mrs. E. E. Harper, Milwaukee, Harold Peters, Chicago, and Alice Balgie Nelson, Oshkosh, Wis.

Beginning at 3:30 Saturday afternoon the auditorium will be open for registration, with lunches arranged for gatherings of old class mates. Letters and telegrams from alumni unable to attend will be on file, and such correspondence has been invited. The registration desk will remain open until supper is served at 6:30.

Welcome to the supper is any person who ever attended Kaukauna High school, and wives, husbands, sons, daughters and friends. The rally will close with a dance in the gymnasium. After supper the tables will be cleared away and dancing enjoyed from 9 to 12:30.

Punchboard Is No Puzzle; Owner Reports to Cops

Chicago—Two men stopped at Wilbur Le Vine's Pal-Waukee airport in suburban Wheeling township Thursday and with monotonous regularity they punched winning numbers from a punchboard he had just purchased from a salesman.

They kept pecking away at the board until they had accumulated $93 in cash prizes.

Le Vine became suspicious and told Morton Grove county highway police that no two men could be that lucky. He added that maybe they were friends of the salesman.

Students Prepare for New Debating Season

Kaukauna — Under the direction of Coach Thomas Nolan, high school students have been gathering material for use in next year's debates. All four classes have students participating with John Clancy, Marjorie Ote, Kathleen Coppel, Lorraine Krueger and Evelyn Trayman from the freshmen class; Robert Bolinske, George Esler, Evelyn Seidel, Raymond Burns, James Brick, Audrey Sobczak, sophomores; Valois Kalupa, Grace Sager, Evelyn O'Dell, juniors; Gertrude Renn, Robert, Helf, Mary Catherine Hatchell, Morris Summers, Robert Johnson and Grace Nagan, seniors. Government operation of railroads is the question for debate.

Duane Curry to Enter Navy Electric School

Kaukauna—Duane Curry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Curry, 111 E. Wisconsin avenue, has left for New York to begin study at a 6-month electrical engineering school run by the navy. Curry, who enlisted in 1921, now holds the rank of chief electrical engineer, and has been visiting his parents here. At the school he will learn construction and installation of electrical equipment on submarines.

Scouters Will Confer On Regatta Activities

Hopkins Indicates He Wants to Give Aid to Business

Fiscal Affairs, Labor Policy Discussed at Meeting With Council

BY DAVID LAWRENCE Washington—Time and again business men have gone to the White House on the so-called business and advisory council, and time and again they have come away without getting the support for changes in legislation that they have recommended.

But this time the business men were accompanied by Harry Hopkins, secretary of commerce, who, ever since his appointment early this year, has given indications that he desires to give the business point of view due recognition in the councils of government.

Two main subjects occupied the business men—fiscal affairs and labor policy. What was said has been described only in general terms at a press conference between Mr. Hopkins and the newspaper men. Nothing has been issued by or on behalf of the business men. This is in line with previous custom and leaves the nation in the dark as to what was said and what was decided.

The original purpose of the business and advisory council was to make recommendations without publicity, leaving it to the administration to take or leave the advice. Thus far, it mostly has been left in the pigeonholes of the government departments without substantial action.

Friendly to New Deal There is some reason to hope that perhaps a change in policy has been considered whereby the administration will attempt to give some recognition to the business men's recommendations. The visitors brought to the White House by Secretary Hopkins are friendly to the administration and predisposed to work in harmony with the government in every possible way.

The problem of how to meet the objections being raised by business men to the Wagner Labor act is not easy to solve. For the administration has committed itself so far on the side of the CIO, which opposes any or all amendments to the Wagner act, that it is difficult to see how the matter can be handled without displeasing the CIO, and this is much more important to the administration than the support of the business men. What the A. F. of L. wants in the way of amendments apparently does not register very favorably with the administration because the A. F. of L. proposals have been severely criticized by the National Labor Relations board, which has taken the same attitude toward amendments that the CIO has adopted. Just why the political support of the A. F. of L.

seems to have been ignored is also one of the puzzles of present-day politics.

Must Noddy CIO So, if the administration really means to make any changes at all in the Wagner act, it must send word to the leaders on Capitol Hill that certain amendments are desired. The likelihood is that no such message will be sent and that attempts will be made to placate business criticism by means of changes in the labor board rules and regulations.

Changes in the rules offer no stability, especially since the board members have indicated that whatever rules they intend to change will have to be safeguarded so as to conform to previous objectives, and this means a hedging about of the rulings so that certainty will by no means be substituted for uncertainty.

The business men of the country have come to accept the principle of collective bargaining, and that is what Secretary Hopkins undoubtedly meant when he said business men did not differ with the labor policy of the administration. It is in the "administration" of the Wagner law that he thinks most of the difficulties arise. This is true, but the interpretation of the law has been consistent with the objectives of the law, and only if congress decides to curtail the wide discretionary powers vested in the board can any substantial changes in the rules bring peace in the labor world.

Police Power The Wagner act is about to be supplemented with further legislation designed to cut out industrial espionage and certain forms of strike-breaking. This is to be the first adventure of the federal government into the field of police power. No objection is being raised by labor leaders or by the administration.

Apparently the federal police power cannot be invoked for such purposes, but it is about to be invoked where employees are concerned. This is but one example of the extremes to which zealous labor defenders have gone, when the true road to labor peace lies in removing the obstacles to better understanding and the abuses which provoke espionage. Mr. Hopkins, as secretary of commerce, is supposed to champion the cause of legitimate business and industry and is expected to remove the barriers to production. Inequitable labor laws and the introduction of more laws to keep alive the friction between employers and employees constitute the gravest kind of problem for the secretary of commerce to handle, and his ability to persuade the president to make an adjustment on labor legislation has been conspicuously challenged by the business and advisory council's recommendations.

Sheboygan Man Was On Relief 11 Years With $8,000 in Bank

Sheboygan—(AP)—This city was enriched Friday by repayment of $2,326.04 in principal and interest of payments made to an undisclosed client over a period of 11 years.

The client was threatened with prosecution for asking relief while having $8,000 in a bank.

Illustration that this is a function of the state governments and city police, which is the usual answer given when an outcry is made that the Wagner act does not protect individual workers from harassing tactics and intimidation by professional union organizers or fellow-workers.

Apparently the federal police power cannot be invoked for such purposes, but it is about to be invoked where employees are concerned. This is but one example of the extremes to which zealous labor defenders have gone, when the true road to labor peace lies in removing the obstacles to better understanding and the abuses which provoke espionage. Lutheran School To Hold Picnic at Church Grounds

High School Band Will Lead Parade, Perform at Outing

New London—The annual picnic of the Emanuel Lutheran parochial school will be held Sunday at the church grounds to conclude school activities for the summer. Featuring the annual affair will be the parade of school children around several blocks near the school district, led by the New London High school band. The band will furnish music at the grounds and an outdoor program of exercises, recitations and songs will be given by the children.

The usual refreshment and concession booths will be erected on the grounds and a public dinner will be served at the church parlors at noon. Supper also will be served from 5 to 6 o'clock in the evening. Committee chairmen named by the Ladies Aid society at its Thursday meeting are Mrs. Richard Gehrke, Mrs. Rose Schmidt and Mrs. Alfred Dexter. Mrs. Oscar Norris and Mrs. Albert Pomrenge will conduct the fish pond.

School work ended with the graduation of 7 eighth grade pupils at exercises at the church Friday evening. The Rev. T. Ohlert of Kaukauna delivered the commencement address.

Nine pupils of the school had perfect attendance throughout the school year. They were Leon Krenke and Sylvia Runge, seventh grade; Raymond Fritz, sixth; Beulah Weber, fifth; Arleen Gorges and Russell Krueger, fourth; Helen Fritz, Dorothy Gernert and Lawrence Manderfeld, third.

200 Persons Present At Ladies' Night of Lutheran Men's Club

New London—Nearly 200 persons attended the Ladies' night program of the Lutheran Men's club at the church parlors Thursday evening. Miss Ida Reinke, Oshkosh, entertained the gathering with a talk on her experiences during a 6-month visit to Europe recently. Music was furnished by Art Kopitzke and his band of musicians and Miss Phyllis Stern entertained with several solos on her electric guitar.

Mrs. Ted Butts entertained the Sunset club at its last meeting for the summer at her home Friday afternoon. Mrs. Anthony Joubert and Mrs. Fred Morack won prizes. Mrs. Clayton Holmes taking the traveling prize. Guests outside the club were Mrs. Kenneth Meating and Mrs. Andrew Martin.

Mrs. L. A. Ziebell and Mrs. Gerhardt Ladwig were guests of the West Side club when Mrs. Herman Ladwig entertained Friday afternoon. Mrs. Paul Schulz and Mrs. Charles Pomrenge won prizes. In two weeks Mrs. Emil Gorges will be hostess.

Knights Score First City League Victory Over Pahl Team, 8-6

New London—The Knights of Columbus won their first game, 6 to 8, from Pahl's News in the City Industrial Softball league last night but the game may still be ruled a forfeit on the part of the L. C. because they had only eight players on the field. Threats of rain and wet grounds at the Washington High school diamond kept many players away. Both teams have been without a victory.

Pahl's News led 4 to 3 at the end of the third inning but Don Farrell started a K. C. barrage with a home run in the fourth and the whole squad batted around for five runs. Art Gottschalk, pitching for the K. C., held the boys to six hits while the winners got 10 off Junior Pahl. John Collar caught for the K. C. and Bob Houk for Pahl's News.

Pahl's News will meet Gambles Monday evening.

OFFICE NEW LONDON

News and Circulation departments of the Appleton Post-Crescent are represented in New London by Alvin J. Brault, 203 E. Cook street. Two Students Return From River Falls for Vacations at Homes

New London—Robert Wilkinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Wilkinson, and Leland Dobberstein, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Dobberstein, returned home Friday for the summer vacation. They are first year students at River Falls State Teachers college and are among the first college students to arrive home.

Bernard Brault, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lucian Brault, arrived home Thursday night after a 2-year enlistment in the C. C. C. at Danbury, Wis., where he served as company clerk. He will be life guard at the Hatten Park pool this summer.

Mrs. M. H. McDonnell and Miss Mary Loving returned Thursday after spending the early part of the week at Minneapolis.

Visitors at the C. J. Dean home Thursday were Mrs. Ivan Thorpe, Ephraim, Wis., and Mrs. Martin Martensen, Sturgeon Bay.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. McKee left Friday afternoon to spend several days vacationing at Loon Lake.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kische, 311 Shawano street, at Community hospital Friday.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. John Hedtke at their home at 328 Shawano street Friday.

Daniel Drath, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Drath, had his tonsils and adenoids removed Friday.

Missionary Society

Reelects President

New London—Re-elected to their offices in the Women's Home Missionary society at the home of Mrs. Don Broeker Friday afternoon were Mrs. W. J. McKee, president; Mrs. F. C. Andrews, secretary; and Mrs. L. S. McGregor, treasurer. Mrs. W. T. Maxted was elected vice president to succeed Mrs. C. J. Dean. The meeting was the last regular one for the summer. A group picnic is planned for July or August.

Youths Who Took Cars Are Given Probation

New London—Marvin Pues, 16, and Guy Durant, 18, were given a suspended sentence and placed on probation to the state board of control for two years by Judge A. M. Scheller of Waupaca Friday morning when the two youths appeared in circuit court for stealing four cars at New London several weeks ago. They pleaded guilty to the four counts when arraigned in police court here May 25.

Dartball League Ends Activities With Party

Fremont—The Twin County Dartball league, representing Weyauwega, West and East Bloomfield and Fremont, ended its activities with a party Friday evening in the basement of St. Paul's Lutheran church at Fremont.

The Young People's society of St. Paul's Lutheran church held a meeting at the Lutheran schoolhouse Thursday evening. Plans were formulated for an entertainment and strawberry social to be given June 15.

The regular meeting of the auxiliary to the Wolf River post of the American Legion was held Thursday evening. Mrs. John Lohman, president, gave a report of a meeting of the Eighth district conference at Marshfield, May 18, where Fremont won first place for auxiliary history.

Delegates named to the state conference at Oshkosh were Mrs. John Lohman, Mrs. Henry Bauer, alternate, Mrs. Frank Koch and Mrs. Bernard Verdon.

The regular meeting of the Wolf River post, American Legion, scheduled for Thursday evening, was postponed until June 8.

The Ladies Aid society of St. Paul's Lutheran church held its regular meeting Thursday afternoon at the Lutheran schoolhouse. A reading, "The Trials and Triumphs of One Hundred Years Ago," was given by the Rev. E. A. Schmidt. Hostesses were Mrs. Mary M. Zuehlke, Mrs. Walter Arndt and Mrs. I. E. Bauer.

YOUNG MOTHER WINS COLLEGE DEGREE

Mrs. Alfred E. Kalmer, the former Marie A. Scanlon, daughter of Mrs. Robert E. Scanlon, New London, now a resident of Louisville, Ky., will graduate June 6 from Nazareth college, Louisville. The school is a liberal arts college for women. Mrs. Kalmer and her two children, Charles, 6, and Tommy, 2, are shown above.

Mrs. Kalmer holds diplomas from Manawa High school and the Milwaukee State Teachers college and studied at other institutions of higher learning, including the Oshkosh State Teachers college, University of Wisconsin and the University of Louisville. Because her household duties occupied most of her days, Mrs. Kalmer finished work toward her bachelor's degree mostly in the late afternoons and evenings.

Mrs. Robert Scanlon and Mrs. George A. Ross and son, Paul, New London, have gone to the southern city for the graduation exercises.

New London Masonic Lodge to Hold Dinner, Confer Degree

New London—The Master Mason degree will be conferred by the New London Masonic lodge following a 6:30 dinner at the Masonic temple Tuesday evening. The dinner will be served by a committee of the Order of Eastern Star headed by Mrs. D. N. Vanderveer, chairman. Others in the group are Mrs. William Oaks, Mrs. Monroe Manley, Miss Myrtle Wilke, Mrs. R. J. Mevorden, Mrs. J. W. Monsted, Mrs. George Ribbany and Mrs. W. B. Stratton.

Members of the Clintonville chapter will be guests of the New London Order of Eastern Star at its regular meeting at the Masonic temple Monday evening. A feature of the evening's entertainment will be personal motion pictures of a trip out west by W. T. Comstock. On the hostess committee are Mrs. H. B. Crisley, Mrs. Fay R. Smith, Mrs. Rudd Smith, Mrs. F. L. Zaig, Mrs. Ben Hartquist and Mrs. H. P. Rektstad.

Mrs. David Rickaby entertained the past presidents of the Women's Relief corps at her home Thursday afternoon and had Mrs. Augusta Brenskie and Mrs. Clarence Beaudoin as extra guests. Prizes at cards went to Mrs. Peter Schuh, Mrs. Edward Kleinbrock and Mrs. Beaudoin. Mrs. Nellie Wells will be hostess in July.

Mrs. Bert Haskell entertained the P. O. club at her home Thursday evening and had as extra guests the Misses Cecelia and Rose Knapstein and Mrs. L. J. Manske. Miss Helen and Miss Rose Knapstein won the prizes. The meeting was the last of the club until after the summer months.

Mrs. D. B. Egan, Mrs. L. J. Manske, Mrs. Otto Krueger and Mrs. Richard Gehrke attended the monthly meeting of the Waupaca county council of the American Legion auxiliary at Marion Friday afternoon. Mrs. Egan presided as county president.

The Thursday Dinner club held its first outdoor meeting at Springvale Golf course Thursday evening and will continue to meet there every week during the golfing season. Golf was played, followed by lunch.

St. Paul's Guild of the Episcopal church will hold a rummage sale at the Emans building on S. Pearl street next Wednesday, June 7. In charge of the sale are Mrs. C. D. Feathers and Mrs. Charles Chegwain.

Firemen Called When Electric Motor Burns

New London—A burned out electric motor in the basement of the Meta Popke grocery store on S. Pearl street resulted in a call to the New London fire department about 8 o'clock Friday night. Smoke from the smoldering motor attracted attention. There was no damage except to the motor.

The Slaters have returned to this village and at present are making their home at the Herman Klawitter home.

Mr. and Mrs. Rex Michaelis are enjoying a two weeks vacation in the east where they will visit the Lester Michaelis family and also attend the New York World's Fair.

Schoolhouse Project Given Official O. K.

Manawa—Announcement has been received here that the public works administration has approved the project which provides for the construction of a new schoolhouse at Symco to replace the building destroyed by fire last December, together with an allotment of $11,041. The project is eligible for operation at the discretion of the state works progress administrator.

According to the report, the state administrator's final decision as to when operations shall begin will be governed largely by availability of funds, the presence of certified relief labor of the types and skills required and other considerations that may be important in the state or locality. School officials at Symco believe that construction work will commence soon but that they must wait for further information before making final arrangements.

Capacity Crowd At Commencement

Ninety-Eight Seniors Complete High School Careers at Waupaca

Waupaca—Dr. William A. Biddle, professor of psychology of the Milwaukee State Teacher's college, addressed the largest graduating class of Waupaca high school before a capacity audience Thursday evening. Ninety-eight seniors received their diplomas, the sixty-third graduating class in the history of the school.

Miss Florence Ovrom presided at the program, introducing the several numbers. Margaret LaHale chose the subject of her talk from the class motto, "We have climbed the foot-hills, yonder are the mountains." This was followed by a clarinet solo by Elois Misdall. She was accompanied by her sister, Margaret Misdall, at the piano.

Dr. Biddle's address, "Young People and the Future of America," was followed by a violin duet by two seniors, Ruth Lamb and Careth Hanson. Their duet, "Gold and Silver Waltz," was accompanied by Miss Charlotte Luther.

Following the presentation of diplomas the Rev. High A. Misdall pronounced the benediction. Harold Peterson, principal of the Keith Avenue, Milwaukee, public school, was present on the twenty-fifth anniversary of his graduation from Waupaca High. He and Mrs. Peterson accompanied Dr. and Mrs. Biddle to Waupaca.

MOLDING OUR MINDS EARLY

Of course we cannot say that Mr. Roosevelt has directed his political lieutenants to propagandize the country for our immediate leap into the next great war. Mr. Roosevelt's messages to his subalterns are often oral or in cipher and seldom find their way to newspapers. And the harmonious chorus that has already been created among the satellites of the White House in supporting the President and upholding his threats against the dictators may be but the reviewing salute as well trained soldiers pass the grandstand and hear the shout, "Eyes right!"

Pure speculation however may be discarded when we read the speech delivered by Mr. Bullitt, Mr. Roosevelt's favorite ambassador, who spoke in the presence of so many American dead at one of the battlefields in France on Memorial Day.

Mr. Bullitt assumed that the case was practically a closed one. His idea appeared to be that the minute war is declared in Europe we will spring to our weapons. He employed an old, canned thought to drive us along but one that must be voted effective because it has all the elements of fear, and it has succeeded before.

Ambassador Bullitt told the French onlookers that sometimes countries "must choose between dreadful alternatives" and that countries like ours "accept the burdens of daily drill and the obligations to assist friendly peoples in case they are attacked" merely because they realize that we cannot wash our hands while others are being destroyed without realizing that "the day will come when they themselves will face the enemy without friends."

France must construe this address as a veritable promise upon our part not only to participate in the next war but to do so in order to save ourselves. This is a very nice addition since our financial contributions need not then be even put in the books.

When we read the history of the Middle Ages where war was so common and so constant we find the employment of this same design rife everywhere. It is difficult to blame the people than for swallowing this brushed up bait because they were located near the battlefields. And the advantages of space, the great distances that separate us from what Mr. Bullitt calls "the enemy" are easily and neatly absorbed by our political spokesmen who say we are in the same position for all practical purposes as if we lay where Ireland is today.

WISCONSIN PROVIDES SOME JOKERS

At least the Wisconsin Congressional delegation was flashy with repartee when interrogated upon the dread question of whether they would dress for the reception to be given the British king and queen.

Congressman Murray said: "I don't believe in kings and queens, all men are born equal, I'm not going."

That was a little stale for a congressman and sounded more like the Socialist mayor of Milwaukee.

Congressman Bolles of Janesville arose to the occasion much better when he said that his only interest in kings and queens arose when they came four in a hand. Congressman Hull said, "If the king wants to see me in a dress suit, he'll have to wait a long time." Mr. Hull shouldn't be so fearful of a dress suit. Democracy is not created by the cut of a coat nor the turn of a collar.

Mr. Schafer of Milwaukee who hands out opinions easily on difficult questions remarked: "I'll be too busy taking care of my tax-burdened people, and anyway the king and queen should have brought Jack along, as well as the Joker."

But it has been said, and not unwisely, that if we only had more receptions for royalty and provided other means of keeping our representatives on the go Congressman Schafer's tax-burdened people might the better be able to shift out from under their burdens.

COAL MINES AND WATER POWER

Alabama has been trying with great energy to extend its coal business. Important veins of this valuable fuel have been uncovered in certain parts of the state.

But Alabama is working against the clock, the tides and the celestial bodies when it tries to extend coal mining in the face of this administration which is putting coal miners out of business.

The grandiose scheme of the pro-puffery of the world at Washington in attempting to further extend the waterpowers on the Tennessee river will displace about a million tons of Alabama coal every year. But when further laps of this great race of water-power development are projected and completed many more than the 20,000 coal miners in Walker county, Alabama, who are about to lose their livelihood will be affected.

It is a weary matter pointing out the didoes, antics, ear wiggling and tight rope walking of the clever young fellows at Washington but it might not be irregular to remind the country that Mr. Roosevelt appointed his own committee to inquire into the very important subject of steam power as against waterpower, and that that committee, composed of his friends and well-wishers, issued a very sharp warning to the general effect that the instances are not ordinary where power may be generated by water as cheaply as by the steam created by coal.

But since the report of this committee is at variance with the concepts of our political engineers who never studied trigonometry and probably couldn't do a very deep problem in arithmetic it is just tossed in the corner while the Merry Dance of Death goes on, and we destroy right and left in order, we are told, to create.

The present plan is to spend hundreds of millions of the people's money to even further develop waterpower. The power so developed costs more in most instances than that generated by steam and particularly where the steam plants are located adjacent to coal fields and the high expense of transportation of fuel is eliminated.

But by the time we end up with our problem we throw coal miners out of work, reject fuel near the surface of the ground and easily to be mined, but pile up the debts on these very coal miners, and many millions more, to pay for the unnecessary, unwanted, and totally uncalled for extension of waterpowers.

Of course we shouldn't say they are entirely unwanted since that would leave out of consideration our energetic and brilliant minded political engineers—those who are sweating to get at the Florida Ship Canal, brush the dust off Quoddy and transport another army to Europe.

DALE HARRISON'S In Old New York

New York—The Gypsy is about gone. The Gyp still thrives. He probably will keep going as long as there are suckers, and suckers there will always be.

The Mayor's drive to rid the streets of beggars has got rid of some of the more obvious mendicants, but the panhandler, the gyp and the small change racketeers go on undiminished. Most annoying to pedestrians are the alms solicitors. Regular tag days are authorized by the city officials and because they are for worthy causes and are decently conducted, they bring no objection. Tag days, however, occur only two or three times a year. Other types of street solicitation go on almost daily. The usual one is for women, generally attractive and well dressed, to stand on street corners and rattle tin containers in front of passersby. The cause is usually worthy, but in some cases the solicitors are making a good thing out of it themselves by getting paid for their work.

Objection is frequently voiced to this street alms soliciting on the grounds that New Yorkers are now spending more money in charity and in relief for the jobless than ever before, and that these daily pinpricks for additional funds are an unwarranted demand upon them, not to mention the embarrassment they may cause visitors.

Girls and women are not above participating in some of the commoner gyp rackets. Small girls in groups bob up at street corners, mostly in the semi-residential sections of Manhattan, and plead for subscriptions to causes about which they are rather vague.

Another practice is for a woman to stand near a subway entrance and tell a sad story of having come downtown to answer an advertisement and losing her purse, so that she has no carfare home. She generally lives in New Jersey, which is a convenient address if one is trying to beg more than a nickel.

A friend's secretary told me the other day that she had been stopped by one of these female gypsies who told such a harrowing story of tragedy and misfortune that the secretary gave her a dollar. As she hurried on, she met some acquaintances who had watched the episode, and they told her they had been observing the woman for an hour and that she had been helped by half a dozen people. It developed that the woman had been a hotel chambermaid, so an effort was made to get her a job at that work. When they told the woman they would help her get regular employment she said: "Me go back to work? I should say not! I'm good for $5 a day at this racket."

The shoe shine boys who work the streets have rackets of their own. Their most reliable system for getting easy money is to cry out to passersby: "If I go home without any money my father will beat me." No one likes to contemplate a little boy being beaten.

Women are most vulnerable to racket appeals, but when a man contributes he generally gives more liberally, though not as often.

Alfred Batson, the story writer, told me a cute story about Arthur Caesar, the songwriter. Both were living in Greenwich Village several years ago, and money was rare. They were invited one night to a costume ball and they had no funds to pay a costume. Batson was able to fix himself up from his own wardrobe, but Caesar was at a loss what to do. They finally took a bedsheet, cut a hole in it and fitted it over his head. With a curtain pole they made a spear, and Caesar went to the ball as a Roman gladiator.

Everything went well until they were returning home about 4 a.m. At a street corner they came upon a policeman who stopped them. To Caesar he said: "Who are you?" The songwriter replied, politely: "My name is Caesar." The cop looked at him in white sheet and with homemade spear, and snorted: "Caesar, eh? A Wise Guy. Who do you think you're kidding?" I am Guy. Not attempting to kid anyone," replied Caesar earnestly. "I tell you I'm Caesar."

This made the cop so sore he took Caesar to the police station, and it was 7 a.m. before friends were able to straighten things out.

Looking Backward

10 YEARS AGO
Saturday, June 1, 1929
Damage from the disastrous fire which visited Sheboygan's factory district late Friday was estimated at between $500,000 and $600,000.

Merlin Pitt, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Pitt, 727 W. Wisconsin avenue, a member of Appleton High school's graduating class, had been awarded a $200 scholarship by Lawrence college.

Law hats were replaced by the old winter felts and other summer toggery was temporarily discarded Saturday morning as a cold wave swept across this section of the state, sending the mercury down 35 degrees to 45 degrees above zero in 12 hours.

Miss Lucille Elser was to arrive in Appleton June 10 from Dallas, Texas, where she had been teaching in the Bryan High school as director of physical education. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Elser.

25 YEARS AGO
Saturday, June 6, 1914
A new court of Foresters was to be organized at Seymour the following day with 30 charter members.

The bridge on the Spencer road near the old Putney place two miles west of the city had been washed out. About a year ago the bridge met a similar fate and when rebuilt it was made 9 inches higher.

A feature of the second annual county commencement exercises held at the court house the previous afternoon was the splendid exhibit of manual training and art needle work by the Combined Locks, Freedom, Greenville and Ellington schools.

Commencing that night, the barber shops were to close every Saturday night at 10 o'clock.

Those who were to attend the state encampment of the G.A.R. at Madison were William Buchanan, William Wilson, Dennis Meidam, H. J. Diener, the Rev. F. Dite, Dr. A. W. Kanouse, James A. Wolcott and August Krause.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell
THE BOY SOPRANO
(Frederick Myster)

He has a songbird in his throat
That trills a pure ecstatic note.
A deeper meaning of the Spring's
Enchantment stirs me when he sings.

I dream again the dreams I knew
When morning skies were bright and blue.
Once more a happy child, I see
New blossoms on the cherry tree.

The Springtime world is green and white;
The lilacs glow for my delight.
As I, secure from mundane frets,
Seek out the woodland violets.

Upon the dark walls of my mind
Such lovely canvases I find.
In retrospect I linger long,
Borne on the wings of childish song.

Sing on, dear Angel! Sing and soar
On clear high notes past Heaven's door.
That I, who am unsatisfied,
May find an early dream inside!

Opinions of Others

STOP ME!
Everyone knows the chap who grabs you by the buttonhole and says, "Stop me if you have heard this one." You know the story, but his hand clutches the buttonhole as firmly as a shoe fits the foot. A kind of foreign courtesy compels you to hear him out.

Now, if plans go through, all this is to be abolished. The buttonhole on the lapel, a survival of the days when the coat buttoned around the neck but now used only for gardenias and pinks is to go.

Pataud of Paris decrees that men's coats are to have no buttonhole! If it all comes true, it would be a grim revenge to meet a fond father, on the street, with news of his fustling, or to encounter the actor who once played with Booth. They will grope for the buttonhole. You are privileged to pass along—Providence Journal.

A Bystander In Washington

BY FRESTON GROVER
Washington—Anybody wanting to see King George and Queen Bees from the luxurious divan of a Pennsylvania avenue cocktail lounge or the dusty window of a dollar flophouse will pay $3 to $10 for the privilege, and there are plenty of takers.

Grover
Kings come high and seldom in this democratic city, and in places the price for a berth at a window is higher than at an inaugural.

Room prices most are two or three times the normal rate, but 2,000 per cent up in others.

We made his awesome discovery while hunting a pleasant spot to view the King over a bottle of pop instead of jostling for four hours with the other 300,000 for a footing on the sidewalks.

Two weeks before the arrival of the King the high hat hotels had sold every window opening below the sixth floor. From the sixth to the thirteenth floor it is like looking at the King down a well. Thirteen floors is tops by law in Washington.

Corner Spot Extra High

The three major hotels on Pennsylvania avenue, the Raleigh, Willard and Washington, are charging $10 a day for front rooms, but you have to take the room for at least two days, including June 8, when the King comes. The Washington Hotel demands a three day booking for $30 because it is on the corner where the parade swings off the avenue toward the White House so the customers get a double-pointed view.

Such prices for a two minute glance at a British sovereign appalled us so we went down below the junkier portion of Pennsylvania avenue to see what there was to sell. A "ing from any other window should look as sweet.

Once you leave the big hotel district you find Pennsylvania avenue full of history, hook shops and beer dens. One side of the street is grand and gorgeous with the marble and granite buildings of the famed Federal Triangle, but the other is a lodge-podge of rusty, white-washed ruins.

If you have a drag with some of the federal help with offices along the happier side of the avenue, that is nice—for you get a grand view for nothing. But those places are in demand, what with a hundred thousand job holders loose for the big day.

Across the street at Azul's second story billiard and table tennis haven we priced one of his three windows.

"If it's your family," says Azul, kindly like, "I'll make it $3 a head if you take a whole window. You can easily get seven—some of 'em kids—out of the window. That's levels up. We haven't seven—some kids—and can't get them by June 8. His prices for the King are higher than for inaugurals.

"If you don't see one President you can see another," he says, "but a King—if you don't see this one you may never see another."

At the aged Mount Vernon hotel on Pennsylvania and Fifth the price is $10 a window in a two-window room that usually rents at $1 a night. We tried a vacant building next door and that's been rented to a concessionaire who will sell seats on a wooden bench at $3 and up.

The lowest price will be at the Volunteers of America next to the precinct police station where $2 seats can be had on the second floor. A few gentlemen guests can view the King from the men's dormitory on the third floor at $1 a head. And the money goes to sweet charity, part of it to keep a girls' refuge.

Nearest to broken hearted was the drug store dealer on Sixth and Pennsylvania. Forlornly he pointed to the bank of trees which screened his windows like a British fog.

"Fifty dollars I could make in two hours if the King comes in February, March, April, May, when it's no leaves, but no. The King don't come 'til June and I can't see nothing but leaves, leaves. Jeepers."

GRATEFUL TO TEACHERS

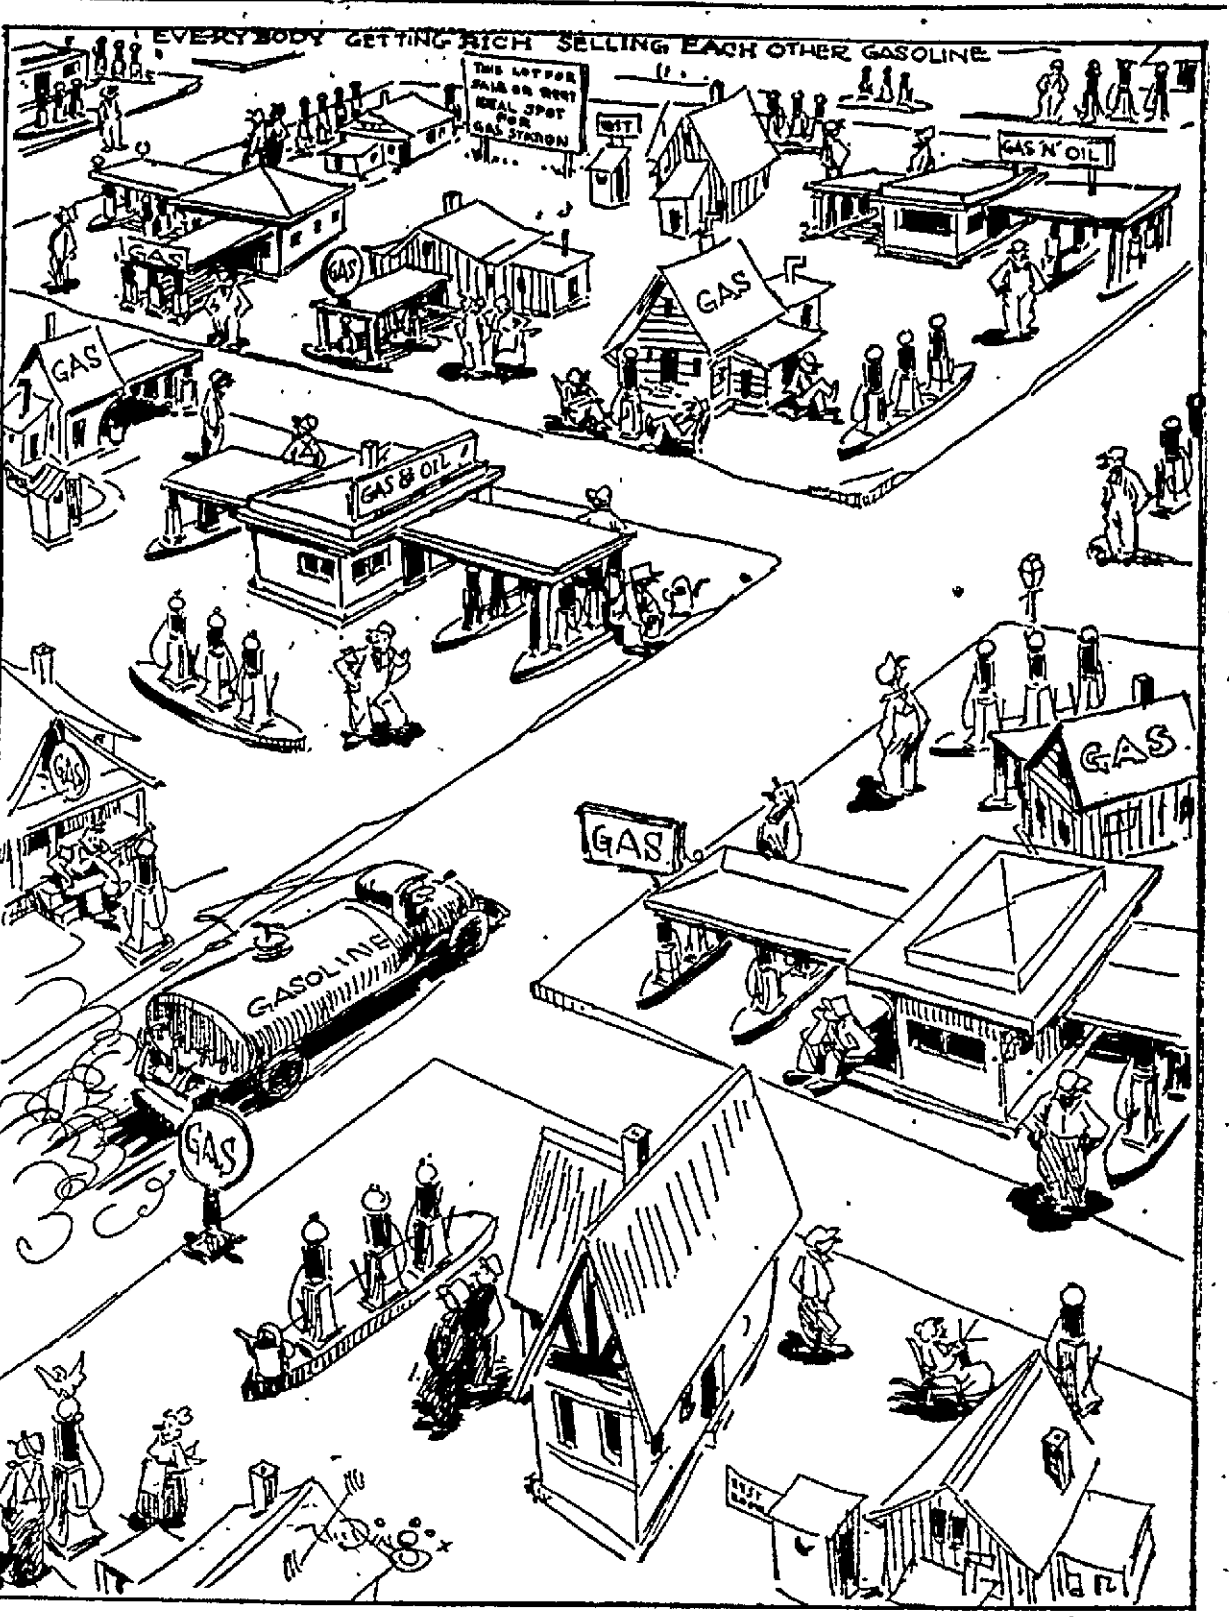

Editor Post-Crescent—Because I am sure that the parents of Appleton—and I count myself the foremost well-wisher in this respect—would like to say a word of deep appreciation to the many public school teachers and with them, their principals and superintendents. A word in appreciation for the many, unselfish kindness toward the Appleton School children.

Every time someone shouts "economy" we all tend to lapse into a state of suspicious coma, in which we allow it to become our belief that our teachers are taking from us, monies that they aren't entitled to.

As a father of four children, all of whom are in our schools, or being graduated from the High School—I bespeak my deep gratitude to the teachers, who all along the way that our children have gone, have contributed so richly toward their lives, that we can't say enough for their fine services—especially at this "tag-end" of the school year.

I marvel at the deep devotion given their tasks by each teacher, and official. Time means nothing to them, just so they are contributing to the needs of the boys or girls on the athletic field, or band room, in orchestra hall or class room. With a noise that is remarkable, one teacher holds the interest of, and administers to the individual needs of each pupil, with no show of favoritism. Always

THE WORLD TOMORROW

Under the Capitol Dome

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Madison—There was political drama and political dynamite in this week when Governor Heil appeared to explain his sales tax suggestions. The dynamite is much more important than the dramatic angle; therefore it may be proper to consider some of it.

Standing out like a sore thumb in the Heil revenue plans from the political point of view, was the absence of any suggestion of bowing to the old pension lobby which has dominated state politics fore and aft for the last year.

Though they naturally didn't try especially hard to point it out, the Republicans' revenue plans do not contemplate an increase in the old age pensioners' checks, at least not out of the state treasury.

DECREASES PROBABLE

While it is probably a hard fact to face, it is still a fact that all evidence points toward an actual reduction in pension checks, an awkward development in view of the word, pension plans in last fall's party platform.

Here is how the situation stands today.

The administration budget provides $7,786,400 for pension funds to regular channels during the next two years.

That will be enough to provide an average monthly check to pensioners of about $20.69 for this year, and about $19.00 in the following year.

Therefore, pensioners will not only fail to get the increases which their organization leaders and politicians have led them to expect; they will actually get a slight reduction in their assistance allowances.

The reason is that the number of pensioners is increasing steadily, and there is no evidence that the trend is going to stop during the next few years. Reliable estimates place the number at 50,000 average for this year, compared with about 46,000 just now, and 55,000 in 1941.

What does that mean for the Republican party?

Republicans aren't sure, but they are worried. Yet they can see little to do about it. Certainly the new taxes they are compelled to enact are heavy enough. Would it be wise to bow to the pension league demands and enact still stiffer taxes? They have decided that it would not be.

Progressives, of course, are chortling privately at the discomforting challenging them to do their best. Always alert to the evidence of ability, and ever ready to encourage them to make the best of their best. And to all of this we parents are the greatest beneficiary. And to all this our community is directly a beneficiary.

Have I aroused your imagination to the appreciation of many many other kindnesses to your children—too many to mention? Then I have in part helped us all to pause—if but for a moment—to say "Thank you!"

I, for one, cherish a deep sense of gratitude, and humble awe, may be apparent truth of the German saying "Undank ist die Wurzel des Bösen." Undank is the root of evil, not to be accepted by you as vulgar, not from Appleton citizens, I believe we all together are most grateful.

A Friend of Schoolteachers.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

NAMBY-PAMBY DIET

Infants nowadays get a fair break in the way of nutrition. Older children and adolescents do not. Thanks to the vast amount of information and instruction given the public in the past thirty years by public health and personal agencies, on the care and feeding of infants, the general nutrition, health, growth and development of babies is far superior to the physical standard of child health which was considered excellent in the days when grandma's squalling was subdued with pap or paregoric. But once the baby is weaned from breast or bottle, the public health and personal agencies for his welfare wash their hands of him and leave the poor kid to get along pretty much on his own. From this point on, various vendors take over, and once these birds have their talons in him they hang on for the duration of childhood—which runs for not less than thirty years consecutively.

Twenty years ago, before many laymen had even heard of vitamins (the first article on vitamins in this column appeared July 27, 1917)—and ain't filing systems wonderful!—physicians recognized in school children from nursery school or kindergarten up to high school or college age a common under par condition which they called cachexia scholastica. Characteristic features of this condition: Unsteady nerves, easily overwrought by trifles, unnatural irritability bordering on hysteria in some instances, disordered digestion, finicky appetite, poor assimilation, nutritional anemia, flabby muscles, slouchy or weak posture, chronic fatigue, deficient power of attention and poor memory. In most instances the young person is underweight. If it is a girl, perhaps mother worries and decides the girl is "delicate" and will outgrow it; if a boy, then mother just worries.

As this nutritional deficiency is as common among youths and young adults who have finished school or college as among school children, a more suitable name for it is Cachexia Americana, in my opinion.

Most children coming to America from Southern Europe have sound teeth. It is notorious that most American children have carious teeth. America is the home of ho-bum—it is fed to the population in lieu of elementary education in hygiene. Add to features of cachexia Americana defective teeth.

The essence of cachexia Americana is nutritional deficiency. Not of some of the majority party members who have seen torrents of pension mail descend on them this session.

HOW MANY VOTES?
Independent observers, however, are inclined to believe that the concentration of emphasis on the pension problem during the last year in Wisconsin politics has tended to exaggerate the potency of what is called the "pension vote." Townsend organizers claim 200,000 votes. If that is a valid claim they hold the balance of power if they combine with the other pension organizations. That they do seems very doubtful.

Some of the most astute political analysts in the capitol put the number of people whose voting is determined by their pension hopes at about 50,000, roughly the number of men and women in the rolls. Whether that bloc will be alienated by the Heil pension budget will be seen in the next election, probably in the next primary for pension promises will be just as prominent in 1940 as they were last fall.

Uncle Fud never was very good at catchin' on to things. He used to go down to the grocery every day for ten years, watching two fellas play checkers. One day one of the players didn't show up. So the other one said, "Fud, how about playin' n.e. a game?"

Fud said, "Sorry, brother, but I don't know the game."

Somebody sent me a nice present which I think should be in every home. It's called "The Power Of Concentration" and has five hundred pages. But I can't read over two pages at a time before my mind starts to wander. But it'd sure help this country if everybody could master that book.

Discover Body of Donald Homblette, Drowning Victim

Funeral for Youth, 16, Who Fell Off Dam, Will Be Held Monday

The body of Donald Homblette, 16 son of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Homblette, 128 E. Spring street, who drowned after falling off the dam above the E. John street bridge shortly before 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, was removed by police at 4:10, a little more than an hour after the tragedy occurred.

Homblette was fishing with Robert Hoh, 16, 309 E. Spring street, and Lester Muenster, 18, 1114 N. Durkee street. The three were walking along the catwalk on top of the dam when Hoh and Muenster noticed Homblette was no longer behind them. They said they did not hear him fall or cry out and their attempts to locate him in the rapids failed.

Police dragged the river between the dam and the bridge without success and then two officers, Sergeant Carl Radtke and Patrolman Carl Kunitz, went below the bridge in a boat tied to the end of a 500-foot rope. They followed a piece of wood to check the course of the current and with a rake pole located the body in a deep pocket about 300 feet north of the bridge.

No Inquest
District Attorney Raymond P. Dohr and Dr. H. E. Ellsworth, county coroner, viewed the body. The coroner said drowning was the cause of death. Dohr said no inquest will be held.

The youth was born Oct. 13, 1922, in Appleton and was a member of the junior class at Appleton High school this year. He was a member of Trinity Lutheran church.

Surviving are the parents; two grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Selig, Appleton, and a great grandfather, William Rectz, Clintonville.

Funeral services will be conducted at 1:30 Monday afternoon at Wichmann Funeral home and at 2 o'clock at Trinity Lutheran church by the Rev. D. E. Bosserman. Burial will be in Appleton Highland Memorial park. The body will be at the funeral home from this evening until time of funeral services.

Werner Withholds Verdict in Indian Car License Case

Judge to Examine Briefs And Seek Statute That Is Applicable

A decision on whether an Indian can operate an automobile without a state license on the Menominee Indian reservation was withheld by Circuit Judge Edgar V. Werner at Shawano yesterday, pending examination of briefs already submitted and a search for a statute he believes to be applicable.

Ralph Tucker, an enrolled Menominee, is defendant in the case which is an appeal from a ruling by former Shawano county Judge F. A. Jackel. Tucker was fined $10 and costs for operating an unregistered vehicle in December 1938, and the appeal was suggested by an Indian bureau attorney. The defendant was arrested on Highway 47 where it runs through the reservation near Neopit.

E. J. Koelzer, assistant United States district attorney, Milwaukee, contended that the federal government, holding the land in trust for the Indians, gave up a right-of-way but not legal jurisdiction of the land on which the highway is located. In a brief review of the Indian laws, he pointed out that only 10 major crimes can be brought against ward Indians, because, at the time the "10 crimes law" was passed, Indians were regarded as less civilized than the white men. While admitting that the statute was outdated, Koelzer said "that is an issue for legislative bodies, and not the courts, to decide."

District Attorney James H. Larson, representing the state, maintained that in giving an unrestricted easement to the state, the federal government also gave up jurisdiction regulation and control of the property on which the easement is granted.

The decision in the case may have important bearing on clarification of laws pertaining to Indians, and is being watched with interest by officials concerned with ward Indians.

Assisting Sunday morning will be the Rev. A. W. Van Dyke, pastor, as presbyter assistant; the Rev. Gerard G. Van Nuland, deacon; the Rev. A. J. Reglin, subdeacon; Frater Donald, a brother of the celebrant, as master of ceremonies. The Rev. Solanus Freischmidt, S. D., professor at St. Nazianz seminary, will deliver the sermon.

After the mass, a dinner in honor of the new priest will be served for invited relatives and friends and for visiting clergy. The Rev. George Bush, Black Creek, will be toastmaster.

The Rev. Father Verhagen attended the Sunny Corners grade school and St. Nicholas Parochial school. He was a student at the Salviatorian seminary, and at St. John seminary, Collegeville, Minn., where he graduated in 1935 with a Bachelor of Arts degree in philosophy. He studied theology for four years at the same institution.

"Colonel Blackey" Probably Regrets Visit to Milwaukee

Chicago—Charged with violating the United States code by illegally wearing an army service uniform at Milwaukee during a German-American band meeting, a man giving the name "Colonel B. J. Blackey" was arrested here yesterday by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

He was arraigned before a United States commissioner and a removal hearing was scheduled June 6.

At Milwaukee, Arthur C. Rutz, agent in charge of the Milwaukee F. B. I. office, said "Blackey" definitely had been identified as Hugo R. Optiz, 71, of Milwaukee, named in warrants there charging abandonment and defrauding a hotelkeeper in 1916.

Arraigned earlier yesterday on an assault and battery charge, on which he was placed on probation for a year, "Blackey" then was placed under bond on the Milwaukee warrants.

State Is Denied Permanent Writ in 5-Cent Milk Case

Test Case at Shawano Continued by Judge Werner Until June 21

Circuit Judge Edgar V. Werner at Shawano yesterday refused to make permanent a temporary injunction brought by the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture and Markets against Charles Anderson, who was enjoined from selling milk from his farm to non-delivery customers for 5 cents per quart.

Judge Werner continued the case until June 21, and said the injunction would be dropped on that date if Anderson did not commit "further violations."

Fred M. Wylie, department representative, and O. S. Luckenbach, Anderson's attorney, hotly argued Luckenbach's contention that Anderson was a farmer-producer and not a milk dealer subject to the department's price-fixing order.

Wylie offered frequent objections when Luckenbach called a farmer to the stand to testify that he was receiving 92 cents a hundredweight for his milk.

Wylie said the department was interested only in maintaining the fluid milk market and not in quibbling over the constitutionality of the law.

"If we don't get this injunction today we will be back later," he said.

Luckenbach accused the department of using the injunction method of enforcing milk prices because "the jury in the land would convict a farmer for selling his farm products, milk included, at a profit."

Wylie replied that the department does not aim to penalize price takers, but merely wants to stop unfair practices.

Council Revises PWA Application

Changes Record to Coincide With Work Being Done at School

The city council at a special meeting last night approved a resolution revising the PWA project fund for the remodeling of Lincoln school. The vote was 16 to 1 with Alderman Knut voting against the resolution. Alderman Keller was absent.

The city originally applied for and received a grant of $41,080 on a project total of $81,258 to remodel the school and to build a new police station on the same property.

Because the city decided against the construction of the police station and went ahead with the remodeling project only, the federal government asked the council to revise its application.

As revised the city now will receive $34,079 from the PWA on a project total of $77,954 for remodeling the school into a city hall. Last night's action was merely to change the record to coincide with the work being done.

A petition from St. Theresa Catholic church asking the city to vacate the alley between Morrison and Durkee streets abutting Wisconsin avenue was referred to the city plans commission.

Student 'on His Own' in New College Examination System

Lawrence college's new system of giving examinations—which, in the words of one college authority, gives the honest student a square break and reduces the faculty's "grading duties"—this week is being used for the third time since its adoption a year ago.

Were you to stick your head into the old gymnasium on the campus, you would see about 180 students bent earnestly over their exam questions, some frowning their brows in deep contemplation as they think out answers, others writing vigorously.

In no other building but the old gymnasium would you find Lawrence students writing their exam questions, because under the new system, the collegians gather in one place for this all-important task of telling their professors just what they know.

Naturally, in a school the size of Lawrence, the 180 students gathered in the old gymnasium are not writing the same test. There are a number of different classes there—English, history, biology, mathematics, whatever groups are assigned at that particular hour.

Under the old system, students taking modern European history, for example, held their examinations in the classroom where they had been convening all year and under the supervision of the professor who had been teaching them all year. But that system has been cast aside.

College Furnishes Paper
Now when a student goes to take his exam in modern European history, he walks over to the old gym, finds his assigned seat, and is given both the exam questions and scratch paper in an envelope. He brings nothing with him but pen or pencil, no paper, no books.

What is more, he finds that his classmates in modern European history, although they are also taking their tests at the same time, are scattered about the gym. On his left, he might find a girl writing about English literature, and on his right, a fellow pondering over organic chemistry. In front of him, a young man is translating French.

If the student is unprepared, he finds himself in a jam; he can't very well get any help from those near him because they are not interested in modern European history at the moment.

Besides, chances are his neighbors never took the course and wouldn't know the answer anyway. He can do only two things, answer the questions or not answer them. His only resort is to his own fund of information.

Failed
The strategy of penciling a few handy equations or dates or names on paper brought to the examination, one that achieved some measure of popularity, is a dud now. The college furnishes the paper, nice, clean paper.

Lawrence college doesn't believe college students are basically dishonest, but it does believe that this method of giving an exam is a challenge to their ability and resourcefulness and that it "gives the honest student a square break."

There's another important angle on this new method. It's on the professors' side.

Under the former system, each professor served as proctor for his own class during examinations. Just as professors differ in their manner of presenting class material, so did they differ in their proctoring. Some were tough. Some left the students pretty much to themselves.

College officials believe that uniformity in proctoring is more satisfactory and fair and that under this system, they have it.

Four at a Time
Four professors are on duty during each test period in the old gymnasium. The college tries to arrange the exams so there are approximately 180 students in the building at one time.

What is more, professors are not present when their own classes are being quizzed. It has been the experience that students occasionally ask clarification of certain questions—some because they are honestly puzzled over the phrasing and a few because they are hoping for a bit of a clue to the answer should the professor explain.

When their professor is not present, the pupils must figure out for themselves what the questions mean. And, as one Lawrence official puts it, "It has given the faculty a liberal education in how to write examination questions so they are clear."

This method also reduces the number of hours which faculty members serve as proctors, with only four professors assigned to 180 students. Under the old system, some professors paced around examination rooms for as many as 12 hours during the week.

Miss Vivian Kasten Will be Bride of Gilbert Relien at
Mt. Olive Lutheran Church

IN a candlelight service at 8 o'clock this evening at Mt. Olive Lutheran church, Miss Vivian Kasten, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond J. Kasten, 803 W. Winnebago street, will be united in marriage to Gilbert Relien, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Relien, 725 W. Packard street. An organ recital by Don Gerlach will precede the ceremony, which will be performed by the Rev. R. E. Ziesemer.

The bride, who will be given in marriage by her father, will carry a bouquet of carnations and white roses in her husband's Alpha Chi Rho fraternity colors. Her maid of honor will be Miss Mildred Krahn, Milwaukee, and the bridesmaids will be Miss June Newman and Miss Margaret Relien, sister of the bridegroom. Harvey Leiser, Milwaukee, fraternity brother of the bridegroom, will be best man, and Ralph Kasten, brother of the bride, Ralph Frank and Carl Nuesse, Milwaukee, and Ralph Lemmer, Chicago, will be ushers. The last three were also fraternity brothers of the bridegroom at the University of Wisconsin.

The ceremony will be followed by a reception for about 200 guests at the home of the bride's parents.

After a 3-week trip to New York and other points in the east, Mr. Relien and his bride will make their home at 1209 W. Packard street. The bridegroom was graduated from the University of Wisconsin in 1936 and is now employed at the Appleton State bank. The bride, a member of Iota chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority, has been employed in the office of the Fox River Paper corporation.

Short-Diffor

Miss Caryl Short, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Short, Humboldt, Wis., and John Diffor, Randolph, Wis., son of John Diffor, St. Superior, were married at 11 o'clock this morning at Memorial Presbyterian church by the Rev. Robert K. Bell. Miss Marie Klein, Appleton, and Donald Morgan, Randolph, Wis., attended the couple.

The wedding dinner was served to a small group at Miss Klein's home on Potato Point. Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Donald Morgan and their daughter, of Randolph.

Mr. Diffor and his bride will be at home in September at Randolph, where he is a high school teacher. The bride, a graduate of Lawrence Conservatory of Music, was Outagamie county music supervisor. The bridegroom was graduated from Superior State Teachers college.

Holmes-Walker

In a double ring ceremony at 8 o'clock this evening Miss Norma Holmes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Holmes, Clintonville, will become the bride of Raymond Walker, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Walker, Sugar Bush. The Rev. W. H. Wiese, pastor of the Methodist church, will read the service, which will be held at the home of the bride's parents on Garfield avenue.

M.M.M. Club
To Make Boat
Trip on River

A FLEET of about six boats will take the M. M. M. club, young married people's group of First Methodist church, on its annual boat trip and outing Tuesday evening. The boats will leave Appleton Boat club at 6 o'clock and will cruise down the river to Combined Locks where they will anchor for supper. The return trip will be made in the evening.

Among the boats which will take the club on its outing are the Hornefeldt owned by Judge F. V. Heinemann; the Doris of Dr. C. A. Pardee; the Whoopee of the East club; the Idler owned by John Leppan; and the Edouise owned by Paul Stevens.

The committee in charge of arrangements includes Mr. and Mrs. Paul Stevens, chairman; Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Gyl, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Anderson are the officers in charge.

The official board of First Methodist church will meet at 7:30 Monday night in the John McNaughton room of the church.

Charles Mueller, manager of the United Grocers, spoke on "The Cooperative Movement" at the meeting of Mr. and Mrs. club of Mt. Olive Lutheran church Friday night in the church parlors. A quiz contest followed, and 47 members attended. In charge of arrangements were Mr. and Mrs. Roy Lottinow, chairman; Dr. and Mrs. L. B. McBain, Mr. and Mrs. Reinhold Hoerning and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Schulze.

Autographing Clarians which seems to be a popular pastime among Appleton High school students these days will be carried on during the outing which will be held at the Kaukauna quarry. The group will leave the church at 3:30 and will take a picnic supper to the quarry. During the business meeting of the officers will take place. The committee in charge includes Miss Shirley Stueck, chairman; Miss Beverly Olson.

Janz-Natrop

The marriage of Miss Marjorie Janz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Janz, 129 S. Douglas street, and Richard Natrop, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Natrop, route 3, was solemnized in a ceremony at 2 o'clock this afternoon at St. Joseph's parsonage. The Rev. Father Gerard, O. M. Cap., performed the ceremony, and Miss Margaret Van Rytte and Robert Schmidt attended the couple.

After a wedding supper this evening at the Copper Kettle there will be a reception at the home of the bridegroom's parents.

Thiel-Tank

The same orange blossoms that adorned the veil worn by her grandmother at her wedding 44 years ago were worn by Miss Evelyn Thiel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Thiel, Black Creek, for her wedding to Clarence Tank, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Tank, Bondouel, at 2:30 Thursday afternoon at Cicero Emmanuel Evangelical church. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Lester Thiel, Cochrane, Wis., an uncle of the bride.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by Miss Warden Thiel, her sister, as maid of honor, and by Miss Esther Tank, sister of the bridegroom, as bridesmaid. Vernon Thiel was best man, and Warren Thiel and Henry Brusewitz were ushers.

Preceding the ceremony "O Promise Me" was sung by Mrs. Emory McChesney, Chicago, aunt of the bride, and "I Love You Truly" by Merline Morie, Cicero, accompanied by Miss Lois Brusewitz.

A 6 o'clock wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride's parents for 65 relatives and friends. Out-of-town guests were the bride's grandfather, Will Schroeder, Marshall, Minn.; the Rev. and Mrs. Frank Spang and children, St. Paul, Minn.; the Rev. and Mrs. Lester Thiel and children, Cochrane, Wis.; and Mrs. Emory McChesney, Chicago.

After a wedding trip to points in the southern part of the state, the couple will be at home at 229 W. Hancock street. Mr. Tank is employed at the Iron Works, and his bride has been employed as a cook in a private residence since her graduation from Appleton High school in 1935.

Sharing the spotlight with June brides this month are a large number of girl graduates, who will don cap and gown in traditional commencement ceremonies during the next week or two. Among those who will be awarded their diplomas are the eight young women above. Left to right in the top row are Miss Mary Fannon, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Fannon, 1117 E. Eldorado street, will go to Elmhurst, Ill., next week to see her receive her B.A. degree from Principia college on Friday, June 9; Miss Dorothy Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Meyer Miller, 308 E. Seventh street, Kaukauna, who will be graduated from the school of commerce at the University of Wisconsin, where she majored in accounting; and Miss Mary Catherine Flanagan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Flanagan, route 2, who will be both a graduate and a bride this month. She will be graduated from Rosary college, River Forest, Ill., on June 5, and will be married June 24 to Franklin Schneider of Milwaukee. A member of this year's graduating class at MacMurray college, Jacksonville, Ill., Miss Jean Noll, extreme upper right, will receive her diploma Sunday. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Noll, 211 S. Oak street, were to leave this afternoon to attend the exercises.

In the lower row, left to right, are Miss Marguerite Greb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Greb, 131 E. Roosevelt street, who is one of five seniors who will receive the bachelor of science degree in bacteriology, with a minor in chemistry, at the University of Washington at Seattle this month; Miss Jean Charlesworth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Charlesworth, 611 W. Wisconsin avenue, Kaukauna, who will be graduated from the college of letters and science at the University of Wisconsin; Miss Mary Ebbesen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ebbesen, 631 W. Sixth street, who will receive her bachelor's degree from the National College of Education, Evanston, next Wednesday; and Miss Elizabeth Watson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Watson, 921 E. RETIRING TEACHER IS GUEST OF HONOR AT PARTY

Reminiscing with the guest of honor at the informal reception given Friday afternoon for Miss Emma Pynn, center, were Mrs. Myra Hagen, left, and Mrs. H. W. Abraham, right, when this picture was taken. Miss Pynn is resigning at the end of this school year after more than 40 years as a teacher in the Appleton public school system, and the party was attended by about 90 persons, former pupils and friends of the teacher. She received a Pullman bag and a purse as farewell gifts.

When this picture was taken she and Mrs. Hagen were probably recalling the strange turn of events which made Mrs. Hagen first Miss Pynn's pupil and then put her above her former teacher as a member of the administration. Mrs. Hagen, secretary of the board of education and purchasing agent, handed Miss Pynn her last check yesterday. Mrs. Abraham acted as one of the hostesses at the party. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Supervisors End Three Day Session

Turn Down Petition for Swamp Road South Of New Holstein

Chilton—The Calumet county board of supervisors concluded a three-day session Friday afternoon. Nearly all day Wednesday was given to a public hearing on a proposal to build three-fourths of a mile of swamp road south of the city of New Holstein in the town of New Holstein. Two estimates of the cost of the road were presented to the board, one by the Sheboygan county highway commissioner, whose estimate was about $5,500, and the other, presented by Ray Jensen, Calumet county highway commissioner, was $2,250. After hearing a number of petitioners, the board on Thursday rejected the petition by a vote of 15 to 5.

The board voted to allow compensation in the amount of $45.32 on claims for damages done by dogs. Claims for poor relief were allowed in the amount of $4,187, while claims of $149.82 were disallowed. Sheriff's justice and constables' fees totaling $903.14 were allowed.

Mrs. Charles Boll has spent the last two weeks in Detroit, Mich., where she was called by the serious illness of her son Charles, who suffered an attack of pneumonia. He is reported to be making satisfactory recovery.

Miss Selvera E. Mack, for the last two years secretary of the Calumet County Agricultural conservation association, has resigned her position. She will be married June 19 to Lloyd A. Loeve at Trinity Lutheran church in Brillion. Miss Florence Veit has been appointed as assistant secretary, and Armin Schwabenberg as chief clerk.

Five children were graduated from St. Martin's Lutheran school Thursday afternoon, as follows: John Helmke, Irene Mortimer, Earl Duchow, William Schmah and Lester Voigt.

On Sunday morning the following nine children will receive their diplomas from St. Augustine school at the 9 o'clock mass: Kathleen Cole, Alice May King, Jacqueline Hume, Betty Jensen, Billy Schlosser, John McFale, Donald Owens, Eldred Schomisch and Clayton Aerts.

The following 22 children will be graduated from St. Mary's school: Clarence Bittner, Alfred Bruckner, Jerome Friedrichs, Jerome Kampfer, Kenneth Mortimer, Roman Nett, Gerald Rank, Norbert Rauch, Earl Schabach, Donald Schaefer, Joseph Ziegler, Bernadine Geiser, Louise Jucker, Frances Kopt, Betty Locher, Eunice Kening, Arline Rollman, Cecilia Zabel, Ina Claire Schuch, Apollonia Sell, Betty Schmitz and Verna May Ziegelbauer.

Eight senior boys of the high school agriculture department, accompanied by Roy Eide, teacher of agriculture, and County Agent A. L. McMahon, were in Madison Saturday to attend the Farm Folks field day. The boys are Paul Christoph, Bernard Schomisch, LeRoy Wagner, Frederick Albers, Joe Ott, Leander Nickel, Gilbert Buechel and Robert Schmitt.

BOOK REVIEW

Writer of New Book Concludes Nazi Influence Will Die Out

By Jean Wiley Thickens

"REACHING FOR THE STARS" by Nora Wain.

If every one who writes or speaks of Germany today could exhibit the same kindly tolerance, genuine sympathy and understanding as does Nora Wain in her recently published "Reaching for the Stars," Europe would not be the armed camp that it is today. Nora Wain is known to millions of readers in every civilized nation of the world as the author of "The House of Exile," that delightful record of her 23 years of residence in China. Her current story is an account of four years in Germany from 1934 till the close of 1938. Mrs. Wain states that she did not want to go to Germany to reside but that it had been her husband's ambition for many years to study music there, and she felt very strongly that it was her duty to share his exile.

Nora Wain is a Pennsylvania Quaker, and force of arms and bloodshed are abhorrent to her, but it is also evident that from some remote ancestor she has inherited a spirit which is not intimidated by that same brute force and terrorism, as it is practiced by the Nazis in Germany today. It is Mrs. Wain's conclusion after four years of living in Germany and mingling with all the classes and conditions of men and women, that Nazism is but an evil fungus growing on the sturdy oak which is the real Germany, and that time will kill the malevolent growth.

Mrs. Wain speaks excellent German and through her literary accomplishments, as well as her husband's great love for German music and her own familiarity with German music and literature, both ancient and modern, these visitors were widely entertained by statesmen, financiers, musicians, artists and writers, all of whom were permitted a wider view of conditions than the ordinary men and women of National-Socialist Germany. She had close friends among the peasantry and the small farmers as well, through the fact that her young daughter's governess while they lived in China had come from a tiny village near Cologne. Numerous high-up Nazi officials also entertained the Wains in the hope of winning important converts who would spread the doctrine of Nazism. Though Mrs. Wain managed to keep her thoughts to herself she was constantly being horrified and disgusted by their ruthless brutality, their utter disregard for truth in the dissemination of propaganda, and their constant attempts to pollute the minds of young children in their efforts to destroy belief in Christianity and a respect for the things of the spirit.

The author admires the German people, their deep love of fine music and literature, their strong family ties, their wholesome enjoyment of outdoors, and their universal open-hearted kindness and hospitality to strangers. She is thoroughly convinced that these sturdy traits will eventually win the battle against materialism. "Through pain men grow," says Mrs. Wain and Germany is suffering today, in spite of what the Nazi propagandists try to tell the world to the contrary. The German people realize that the Jewish program which is in force there is a blunder that has won Germany the condemnation of the world and lost their present government the adherence of vast numbers of its own people.

Perhaps the finest chapter in this exceptionally splendid book is the one in which she describes the annual grape harvest in the beautiful valley of the Ahr. Her pictures of the type of people she encountered during her stay there, their customs and beliefs, their simple superstitions and fete-days make a saga which might have been lifted bodily from some ancient volume depicting the Golden Age of Pericles in Greece.

Mrs. Wain has done more than merely write an enthralling story, she has contributed her part towards a better understanding of the problems of confronting the nations of the world today. And in addition she has demonstrated the old adage to the effect that "the world is a mirror," and if one smiles into the glass, only smiles will be reflected back again.

Commencement Fetes Held in Gymnasium Of Marion School

Marion — Commencement exercises were held Thursday evening in the high school gymnasium. The commencement procession was played by the high school band. The Rev. W. H. Wiese gave the invocation, which was followed by the salutatory address by Annette Fox. Two selections, "Cradle Song" and "Robin in the Rain," were sung by the high school trio. The boys' chorus then sang "Pickin' Cotton" and "Blow, Trumpets Blow."

The commencement address was given by Superintendent G. E. Watson of Marinette. "The Lost Chord" and "Tears and Smiles" were sung by the boys' quartet, after which the girls' chorus sang "Allah's Holiday" and "Barcarolle." Lester Opperman gave the valedictory address, after which the mixed chorus sang two selections—"In Heavenly Love" and "Vanka'n Tanka."

Myra Gruensten presented the class gift. Superintendent L. K. Forrest presented the class, and the president of the board of education, Leslie Noack, presented the 53 seniors with their diplomas. The benediction was given by the Rev. W. H. Wiese after which the commencement recessional took place. Music was furnished by the high school band.

Waupaca County Farms To Be Inspected Soon

Waupaca—The inspection of 3,440 farms in Waupaca county which will participate in the 1939 agricultural conservation program will begin soon, according to Almo J. Larson, chairman of the Waupaca county committee.

Farm reporters have been selected in each township who will obtain the necessary information with respect to crops planted and soil building practices carried out in 1939 on the farms participating in the program.

It will be necessary for the farm operators to assist the reporters in identifying the fields on aerial photographs which will be used for the first time in this county and to help measure any fields which have been divided in 1939.

The county committee is stressing the need for cooperation of farm operators in assisting the reporters to speed inspections making it possible to receive payments earlier than usual. It is also urging farmers to have on hand receipts for the purchases of seed, lime or fertilizers used in carrying out soil-building practices.

Rockne Memorial Fieldhouse to be Formally Opened

Dedication of $600,000 Structure to Highlight Commencement

SOUTH BEND, Ind., (AP)—To set aside a memorial of action to a man whose restless spirit still pervades the University of Notre Dame campus, graduates and friends gathered today for formal dedication of the Rockne Memorial fieldhouse.

Dedication of the $600,000 memorial to the late Knute K. Rockne, Notre Dame athletic director and football coach, this afternoon was a highlight of the university's 95th annual commencement. Rockne was killed in a 1931 plane crash.

The 182-by-210-foot Gothic structure was designed to provide a place for interhall athletics, in which Rockne as athletic director was interested intensely.

It contains a 75-foot swimming pool and a 14-foot beginners' pool 12 courts for handball and squash; two regulation basketball courts; a sun lamp room; general exercise rooms with apparatus for correction gymnastics; quarters for boxing and wrestling; badminton, tennis and volleyball courts, locker rooms and golf facilities.

Space for Trophies

In the immense foyer is space for Notre Dame's athletic trophies and a place for the "Book of Memory," which will contain names of all who contributed to the memorial.

Teammates who played football with Rockne as undergraduates will be special guests at the dedication.

Mrs. Bonnie Skiles Rockne, widow of the coach, and Rockne's two sons were to be on the speakers' platform.

Speakers were to include Arch Ward, sports editor of the Chicago Tribune; the Rev. John F. O'Hara, president of Notre Dame; Major John L. Griffith, Big Ten commissioner; Charles E. (Gus) Dorais, University of Detroit athletic director, who was to present Rockne's teammates Frank E. Hering, first official Notre Dame coach and now a university trustee, and Elmer F. Layden, present athletic director.

The ceremonies were to be broadcast over the Mutual Broadcasting system.

WRONG TECHNIQUE NEVER GETS FISH

By Ozark Ripley

I HAVE seen many a fisherman who has been following the sport of rod and reel for years unable to catch a bass with artificial lures. It doesn't seem possible that anyone could be so inept and yet go on for years without learning some of the simple things which must be done if the bronze backs are to be taken with plugs, flies, or other man-made baits.

Watching one young friend of mine carefully, I was not surprised that he never brought in any bass. His casting was atrocious, his lure in the middle. He laid out his plug with a will but certainly very little way. His line backslashed over half the time. He created a stir and rumpus which would have frightened almost anything that lives and, when he did get his bait out, didn't retrieve it with any skill and brought it down with a slap and bang that was not conducive to fooling any discriminating fish into thinking that a minnow was plopping down into the water.

His line at all times was loose after it hit the water, and he didn't bring it back in such a way that he could set the hooks when he did. He took up the slack without any attempt to twitch them in an enticing manner.

He Was A Sad Example

He used to get so mad that it seemed he might give up trying. He was a bit self-willed, however, and thought that he was doing everything correctly but just wasn't lucky. When the fish did strike, he just pulled against their hits and didn't set his hooks. He was a sad example of what the well-schooled disciple of Isaak Walton should do.

I finally could stand it no longer and set out to tell him a thing or two. I had him stop his cast before his line was out to the limit of the power he had generated. I had him bring it down with a relatively mild pop. I had him pay more attention to how he was reeling the line as it went out. I taught him to strike efficiently when his plug attracted a fish and gave him a merry razzing in general.

He was put on his mettle and soon began to cast scientifically and to get results. Today he gets his share of bass and then some. He is a happy fellow when he comes off the lakes and streams after a session with the small or large-mouthed bass. It took a little time and patience but he finally saw what his faults were and got results. Anyone can, but all too many don't.

Curt Davis Comes Into His Own As Star Pitcher for Cardinals

IN the spirited picture of the re-gassed Gas House Gang, the Cardinals of St. Louis, heading eastward to spread devastation and dismay along the Atlantic seaboard, as in their world championship wars, stand tall figure of a man, a freckled, Will-Rogers-type, slow, sprawling hombre from the southwestern sand-belt, where they could not raise a hill of beans until the irrigation moved in — Curt Davis.

Lumber Curt turned up this spring as the one thing the Cardinals needed most to make them pennant contenders instead of just

Lombardi's Ninth Homer of Season Wins for Reds, 4-0

Comes in 11th With Two Mates on; Giants Tip Cards, 8-2

BOSTON (AP)—Ernie Lombardi's ninth homer of the season, driven into the left field stands with two mates aboard, yesterday climaxed the Cincinnati Reds' second straight overtime victory over the Boston Bees, by a 4-0 margin in 11 innings. The Reds exploded a five run barrage in the thirteenth to win Thursday's game.

During most of the shutout, which enabled the Reds to gain a game on the second place St. Louis Cardinals, Milburn Shoffner, the Boston southpaw, waged a keen duel with Whitey Moore.

Until the tenth, Shoffner limited the hard hitting league leaders to five scattered hits, and their scoring chance did not come until Bill Werber opened the eleventh with a single. After he was forced by Linus Frey, Shoffner issued his third base on balls to Ivan Goodman.

The pace then told on Shoffner and, after Frank McCormick singled to bring in Frey with the first run, Lombardi belted the first ball pitted into the stands for the other three tallies.

GIANTS SCORE 8 TO 2 WIN

New York (AP)—The New York Giants, who hadn't scored a run in their last 15 innings, grouped five in the first frame yesterday to wallop the St. Louis Cardinals, 8 to 2.

The uprising was staged against durable Curt Davis on two errors, a double, a sacrifice bunt, and three singles, one of them by Joe Mauer with the bases loaded.

vague dark horses. They craved a mound ace to blaze the victory trail. Their batpale power, Medwick and Mike reinforced by a .369-hitting Pepper Martin, required only the right pitching to make it pay off in heavy percentage.

When the May story of National league campaigning was written, Curt Davis was passing along nose and nose with Lou Fette, Boston Bees ace, in the race for the 1939 pitching championship of baseball's oldest league. The direct result of Curt's eminence was that the Cardinals held first place throughout the eastern division of western cities, despite the sensational winning streak of the Cincinnati Reds.

Pitching did it, pitching that backed up the batpale power manfully. In the last seven games at home against eastern invaders, Cardinal pitchers allowed only 7 runs and 45 hits, an average of 1 run and less than 6 hits per game. In the same 7 games the Gang clouted 67 hits and scored 42 runs. They were the only National league club not yet held runless in a game this year.

Davis Is Dominant

Figures speak straighter than adjectives. That kind of baseball will win any pennant. Lon Warneke, Bill McGee, Morton Cooper, were all in there firing for the old Gas House during this 7-game spell, but his dominating figure was the lean tower from the Imperial Valley, cool Curt.

On Monday, May 22, he jumped in to rescue Cooper in the ninth and pull a 2-1 decision into the barn safely, the narrowest squeak of the 7-straight winning streak. Wednesday May 24, Curt won nine innings against the Bees and posted a 7-0 shutout victory as his sixth win of the year and his second shutout.

Only Fette, the National league's April-May pace-making pitcher, had six wins before Davis racked up his own No. 6. Only Fette and Curt's teammate, Warneke, had two shutouts. Neither Fette nor Warneke nor any other National league pitcher had been in as many as 12 games, which was the marking on Davis record when he took his place in the clubhouse after his Bees-blasting masterpiece. May, 1939, saw Curt Davis come into his own, make good the promise of his sensational freshman year with the Phillies, 1934, when he won 19 games for a seventh place club and ranked third in the National league earned run averages.

Arm-trouble spotted his record in the ensuing years, even when traded to the Chicago Cubs in 1936, and as late as his first year with the Cardinals, 1938.

His Cub career, started with something of the flourish he shows this year. He pitched for the victorious National league team in the 1936 All-Star game in Boston. But apparently it took 1939 to put him out in front of the whole league array of moundsmen, a dominant figure in the senior major circuit's flag fight.

Major Threat

As the parent body's scene shifts from west to east for its early-June season, the long-armed sidewheel delivery of Davis looms as the major threat to the batting averages of hostile National league armaments. It's the prime piece of defensive artillery bristling from the battlements of the re-gassed Gas-house.

In this year's National league story, the season's first invasion of the west by eastern clubs will stand as a drastic landmark. When it started, a blot of 31 games covered all 8 clubs. When it finished, there was a gap between the Cardinal-Rey due to a virtual tie for first place, and the third place Chicago Cubs.

It finished with the entire first division populated by the four western clubs, and a second division exclusively Eastern. Its score showed 29 Western victories against 19 for the invaders, a .763 percentage, the most drastic repulsion of sectional invaders for many a long year of exciting National league history.

Phil Zwick Signs For June 23 Bout With Nick Peters

Phil Zwick, the Kaukauna boy who made good, has signed for a bout with Nick Peters at Hollywood stadium June 23. Peters hails from Texas and is bracketed under Henry Armstrong. Lou Ambers and Sammy Angott. He has knocked out his last four opponents among who were George Hanford and Mike Bellosio.

Peters weighs 135 pounds so Zwick again will be giving away a few pounds. Zwick has had a hard time finding boys who will meet him at his own weight. The "Wisconsin Flash" says he now is acclimated and is confident he'll give a good account of himself.

(Note—Zwick picked Baer to beat Nova in his letter telling of the forthcoming bout in California.)

Hawkeyes Defeat Badgers to Take Big Ten Pennant

Wisconsin Allowed but Two Hits in Deciding Baseball Tilt

CHICAGO (AP)—Win, lose or draw in today's season-ending game with Wisconsin, the Iowa Hawkeyes are the 1939 baseball champions of the Western conference.

Iowa clinched the title yesterday with an 8 to 0 victory over Wisconsin. The triumph gave Iowa eight wins in 10 games. Should they lose today in the last game at Iowa City the leaders still would retain first place by a half game. All other teams ended their schedules a week ago.

Hal Haub yielded the Badgers only two hits yesterday and his mates played errorless ball. Iowa sewed up the decision in the fifth inning with a four-run rally, highlighted by Erwin Prasse's home run with two on base.

Indiana, co-champion with Iowa last season, finished in second place with seven victories and three defeats. Michigan ranked third and Northwestern and Minnesota tied for fourth spot.

Iowa Wins Stride

Iowa lost two of its first three Big Ten games, but has not tasted defeat since the circuit since April 22 when Illinois blanked the Hawks, 8 to 0. Purdue was their other conqueror, 4 to 1, in the first conference game of the season.

After losing a single game to Purdue and splitting a two-game series with Illinois, Iowa began a seven-game winning streak, sweeping the previous week with Minnesota, Northwestern and Chicago before taking the decision over Wisconsin yesterday.

Iowa pitchers, paced by Haub, allowed the opposition only 3.1 runs per game and recorded three shutouts. Oddly enough, Chicago, tied for ninth place, scored 12 runs in two games against Iowa for the best record against the champion's mound staff.

The Wisconsin-Iowa game score by innings:

Wisconsin	000	000	000	0	2	1
Iowa	100	041	11x	8	13	0

Consult The Experts
 Your dentist and your physician inform you that gargles and pastes do NOT exert any significant action on the germs in your mouth. They may flavor your mouth and encourage you to wield toothbrush more often, but they are inconsequential germicidal agents. For example, germs can rarely be killed without also killing the human cells in your throat or gums. Therefore, anything that would kill a significant germicide would be too destructive to employ in your mouth. That is one reason why we physicians don't have to be polite to everybody upon whom they can lay all the nerves and temper they have. They don't show to anybody else. They don't torture as bad as they can. They can't. Somebody has to take it and appear to take it, or else break up the home. It is queer, but somehow lots of people do not feel that they have to tell their own wives as if they were ladies.

This is prompted by what I heard

Pet shops and garden stores generally carry a large assortment of lesser aquatic plants which will grow in such containers. Heading the list is the water-hyacinth which produces large quantities of beautiful blooms during a season from a small plant. The long roots should be immersed in the soil of one dish. For another dish-like container try water-poppies. They grow like water-lilies and bloom a yellow flower similar to the California-poppy. Feather, flower, fishplant, water-waves and watercress are other suitable plants. Plant each different kind in a separate container. Keep the roots in the soil and the containers filled with water are the

"Don't know. He said if I played you'd chase me away. Will you?"

"No. I don't go about chasing children no matter what your sister says. But I do wish you'd eat your cookies and go around the other side of the house."

"Why?"

"Because this side of the house
mine and you mustn't come here less I invite you."

"Why?"

"Just then, in time to save Joe-ey's crumbling restraint, Gretchen hurried toward them, an apologetic expression on her pale face.
She thought I heard her talking," explained a little breathlessly a awful sorry if she's bothered me. Miss Russell. We told her not to come here but she won't mind returning the dusty paw-prints." She proceeded to her exquisite French doll, whose curls were Auburn and whose eyes were deep blue, against a nest of silken boudoir pillows at the head of the bed. Geoffrey had brought her that doll from San Francisco because, he asserted, it looked like her. Geoff could be terrific when he wanted to.

Later, ordering lunch in the club grill, several of her friends drifted over, anxious for further reports on the Macks. Jocelyn laughingly told them of her morning's adventures with Betsy and Tex. Here among her friends in the leisurely surroundings of the perfect appointed clubrooms the descent of the Texans appeared humorous. And at least it would furnish the younger crowd a new interest. Several girls inquired archly concerning the stalwart young farmer, slyly suggesting that Geoff might not be pleased

SATURDAY TALK

A question about the compass in a letter from Mr. George Kennedy, who writes: "Did they use the compass during St. Paul's time? Our Men's class was wondering how they traveled from one place to another on the Mediterranean sea." No, there was no compass in use on the Mediterranean sea in the time of St. Paul. The compass was not known in Europe for 1,300 years after his death, though it was employed by Chinese sailors long before it was known in Europe.

Sailors of Egypt, Phoenicia, Greece and Rome had nothing but the sun and stars to guide their course if they were out on the open sea. They could tell the east and west by the sun. At night they knew the North Star. Most ancient sailors did not dare to go on the open sea. There was too much danger of cloudy weather which might hide the lights of the sky. Also there was fear of storms which might upset their long, rather narrow boats, which had both sails and oars.

Sea travel was then mainly close-to-shore travel. Boats would follow the coast lines in a journey to Greece. During most hours of most days, the coast could be seen. If a storm arose, the sailors would try to go ashore and anchor their ship. "Any port in a storm!"

The date of St. Paul's death is not clearly known, but it was about the year 67. He seems to have been between 64 and 70 years of age at the time he died.

Paul was born in Tarsus, a city in Asia Minor. It still exists in the southern part of Turkey. The present population of Tarsus, or "Tarsus," is 22,000.

Paul's real name was "Saul," and he came to be known as "Saul of Tarsus." The Bible, however, speaks of him as "Paul" in his later life. In his early years, he was a tent-maker, but his heart was not in the work. He wanted to be a priest of the Jewish faith. At last he was able to go to Jerusalem, and there he studied to become a rabbi.

After the death of Jesus, a high priest sent him to Damascus to work against the Christians. In that famous city, he told of a strange vision he had had along the way, saying Jesus had appeared before him in the vision. Instead of working against the Christians, he joined them.

During the rest of his life, Paul was an important preacher of the Christian faith. He made journeys to far places, and started churches in several cities. More than once he was cast into prison, but while inside prison walls he was able to write letters to his friends. Some of his letters or "epistles" later were gathered together, and they form many pages in the New Testament of the Bible. Although he was a Jew, Paul was classed as a Roman citizen because he was born in the Roman city of Tarsus.

Week-end Digest of Business Activity In Appleton and Vicinity

Quality Printing Real Aid to Gain In Sales Volume

Roemer Company Turns Out Clean Cut, Re- liable Work

With general business peaking out from around the corners in an optimistic attitude once again, merchants who must make their printed advertising produce results will give attention to the high quality printing service maintained by Chris Roemer Estate Printers, located at 119 S. Appleton street. Business, it is true, is better but every dollar spent for advertising whether it is used in the form of circulars, printed books, posters, or handbills must bring in maximum returns.

Being marooned in a sea of summer doldrums has gone definitely out of date, and the so-called summer slump has become as obsolete as the dodo bird for merchants who carefully plan summer advertising printing and have their needs filled by capable printers who are able to assist them in every way. Printing, the Roemer firm maintains, that is carefully planned and wisely distributed cannot be classed as an expense but rather as a necessary business-getter requirement. While printing does cost something to produce, the right kind brings back in sales far more than its original cost.

In considering summer advertising printing needs, supplies of printed envelopes, letterheads, billboards, order blanks, business cards, and other office forms should be checked. By placing new orders well in advance, all possibilities of running short on some very necessary items are avoided.

Good printing, cleanly and attractively done, means much to every business. Customers say that complete satisfaction is certain with every printing job turned over to the Chris Roemer Estate Printers. Concrete suggestions as to revising and improving of printed matter, whether it is personal or business, await the user's request at Roemers. The telephone number is 1790.

Berliner, Beer Of Quality, Adds To List of Users

Is Splendid Pick-Up Beverage for Hot Days, Say Friends

Recognized as a truly mellow brewer throughout all seasons of the year, Berliner beer is a favorite brew of many Wisconsin beer lovers, judging from the amount of beer produced and distributed daily to all points of the State by the Berlin Brewing Company, brewers of this well-known product.

The same uniformity in flavor and quality is a mark of distinction which Berliner beer bears and explains more closely than anything else perhaps why Berliner beer is a leading brew in point of consumption in many localities. The general invigorating effect of the beer in addition to its special tastiness makes it a universally popular and the dependable beverage for all types of entertainment parties. Berliner's friends agree that it is a beer which is completely satisfying, delicious, and truly invigorating all the year round.

Friends of Berliner say, too, that whenever weather and affairs in general have one feeling "low," the best bet is to step out for a glass of Berliner beer and discover what true quality in beer really means. They believe that Berliner is a brew which old-timers remember and the younger crowd has learned to favor.

They have called Berliner beer the "beer of quality," ask for it when out, and keep it on hand at home. Its many fine qualities and exceptional taste will make others decide that it is the beer for all occasions. The local distributor can be reached by phoning 3029, Sam Mader, Prompt tavern and home delivery service is available.

GRIST OFFERS COOLED AND CONDITIONED FUR SHOP

Here is the attractive interior of Grist Furs, 231 E. College avenue, made even more attractive by cooling and air conditioning equipment. The delightful "mountain air" atmosphere at Grist's makes it possible for customers to inspect and try on gorgeous new furs, or slip into their present coats for remodeling try-ons. In perfect comfort, no matter how hot it may be outside. The same cooling system is used to produce Grist's "Freezing Cold" fur storage, and to keep the Grist workshop at a temperature healthy for furs. Many owners of fur coats and fur-trimmed cloths have learned the wisdom of sending furs to Grist's for the summer, particularly since expert inspection, combing, dust-cleaning and storage start at a $2 minimum. A phone call to 5308 will bring a bonded messenger to pick up a customer's fur coat.

Appetites Easy To Satisfy With Puritan Products

Hoffmann Offers Wide Variety of Tempting Baked Goods

Are appetites wavering during the warm summer months? Not a bit for regular patrons of Hoffmann's Puritan Bakery, 423 W. College avenue, say the wise homemakers who have learned how truly great a help this modern, efficient bakery can be to them.

In addition to tasting extra good, no matter what kind of a day it might be, Puritan bakery goods have the extra advantage of being highly nutritious and easily digestible—both important to good physical condition during the summer.

mer when folks tend to play hard and eat less.

For cakes and pastries Hoffmann's Puritan Bakery has established an equally enviable reputation. Superior baking knowledge and modern equipment go with the choicest ingredients to make cakes and pies which rank with the best in homebaking.

The problem of making meals more interesting and looked forward-to is, of course, solved by shopping at Hoffmann's purely because of the immense variety of baked goods and its unquestionable goodness. The wide and constant varied selection at this fine bakery make it advisable to pay an occasional visit there. However, scores of people find it convenient to simply phone 423 and let Hoffmann's delivery service take care of the transportation problem.

Government Too Hard on Bosses, Babson Charges

Executives Forced to Join Ranks of Unemployed, He Says

BY ROGER BABSON
New York — The church which I attend at Wellesley Hills has what is called an "Open Door." The church is open every afternoon and evening, seven days a week, and fifty-two weeks a year for those who have problems. Some lay men or some lay woman is in charge of the work each afternoon or evening.

There are fifty of these business men and women of the community who are on duty during the year. In addition to being of help to those who call with their various problems, these conferences are of great value in enabling our leading citizens to learn first-hand of the spiritual, educational, economic, and civil troubles which the less fortunate have.

When the big depression started — in 1930-31 — it was the day laborers who were first thrown out of work. The greatest hardship came upon them for they had no savings accounts nor other reserves. As the center of the depression was reached — in 1933 and 1934 — another group, including white-collar workers, began to suffer as their savings were used up. Both of these groups have been aided for the time by the WPA and other forms of government spending. The recession of 1938-39, however, has reached the higher-bracket incomes — the salesman, executive, and employer group.

Employers Hard Hit
Eight years ago the distressed cases were among the poorly-paid day laborers. Five years ago they were among the mechanics and clerks. Now they are among the executives and employers. Recently I was on duty at the "Open Door" session. I had five callers. Three of my five callers were among the executive class who 10 years ago were receiving salaries in excess of $3,000 a year and two were engineers. This is not only a new development in the unemployment situation but it is vitally important to every manufacturer and merchant.

These executives and their families have been the good spenders. If this group must now slash their standard of living, it means even less trade and fewer jobs. No WPA or government relief program has yet been devised to help the investor, executive, or employer group. In short, an entirely new problem is developing today in connection with unemployment. The employer class is now suffering with all others. Since they are the ones who must provide the jobs, the time has come for action.

If we are to continue our system of private ownership, there must be radical changes in the attitude of the government, labor leaders, and even preachers toward employers. Unless the state is to take over all industry and be responsible for giving everybody a job, then it is essential that it help rather than hinder employers. When there is a shortage of work, the need is for more employers.

JOY HODGES POSES WITH SEARS' BIKE

Perched aboard one of Sears deluxe streamliners, Joy Hodges turns on that charm which is causing so much comment in her new Universal picture, "Service Deluxe." The special construction features of the new Sears' streamliner, which is far more sturdy than conventional types, has attracted as much attention in the bicycle field as has Miss Hodges in the motion picture world. The bicycle — without the enjoyable presence of Miss Hodges who rose to movie prominence via musical comedy roles — may be seen at Sears' Appleton store.

TWO AGAINST LOVE

at his fiancée's constant and unavoidable propinquity with such an attractive male.

"Like A Bridge Pad"
"Nonsense!" Jocelyn declared. "He lives in overalls and boots and treats me as if I were a necessary nuisance! And this, darling, is priceless! His family call him 'Tally'! Can you imagine a girl getting emotional over anyone called Tally? It sounds like a bridge pad or a call to the fox hunt." She went on to tell them about the division of the house and grounds, triumphantly stating that she had salvaged, intact, the drawing-room.

Still laughing, she spied Geoffrey coming toward her. He appeared annoyed about something.

"We were discussing Lyn's adopted family," Ruth Benton teased.

This is the simple and only answer to unemployment!

We are, therefore, facing this situation: Either we must change our American system of government and turn to state capitalism (which ultimately develops into Fascism) or else we must change our attitude toward employers, builders, and investors. We have played at this thing too long. Now that all groups are suffering, we can delay the choice no longer. When scores of well-paid executives are forced to sell their homes, slash their standard of living, and return to manual day labor, then we come smack up against a problem which has not yet occurred during the depression.

Must Encourage Employers
If the great need today is for more employers, we must encourage employers. The following are three ways this can be done:

(1) Taxes can and must be lowered. I refer to city taxes, state taxes, federal taxes, and the other hundred and one taxes now inflicted upon employers. This, moreover, is not an appeal for the idle rich. As far as I am concerned, Roosevelt can put a 90 per cent tax on the "play-boys." I am asking for lower taxes on homes, business blocks, and factories. No matter how much money the federal government is willing to loan for new houses, building will not increase until taxes are reduced. It is the taxes which you must pay on your home and on the addition to your plant that hold back building. Merely lowering the interest rate on mortgages will not encourage you to build a new house if your taxes are going to increase more than what you save on mortgage interest!

(2) Labor must let up on employers for awhile. I believe in collective bargaining. The wage workers of the corporation have as much right to combine and negotiate through some person of their own choosing as have the

Use 2 Coats When Painting, Is Tip From Ward Store

Paint, Don't Stain. Old Shingles, Says Department Head

"Should I paint my home one coat every two years or two coats every four years?"

This is a question frequently put to Miss Helen Glasnap, Manager of the paint department at the Appleton Montgomery Ward store. On this point Miss Glasnap is very definite.

Not less than two coats should be applied every time painting is necessary," she says. "A one coat job is rarely successful because the first coat must be thinned for a good job, and a thin coat of paint is never very attractive."

Another question frequently heard in Ward's paint department is in regard to refinishing old stained shingles. According to Miss Glasnap, old and weatherbeaten shingles can be repainted with single paints having a linseed oil base. It is not, however, advisable to use single stain because the result often has a muddy appearance.

"Shingle stains are intended for use on new shingles only," she explains.

Miss Glasnap is always glad to give sound advice in regards to paints, stains, varnishes and enamels to visitors at Ward's paint department. Moreover, Ward's large stock of these products at Ward's noted low prices—give the prospective paint buyer the advantage of both money-saving advice and money-saving costs.

Ladies Aid Society

In Meeting at Marion
Marion—Mrs. Emma Zillmer and Miss Bauer of Colby are guests of their sister, Mrs. Henry Uttomark. Mary and Betty Ann Newell of Three Lakes are visiting at the home of their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Horn.

The Ladies Aid society of St. John's Lutheran church met Thursday afternoon, at the church parlors. After the business meeting, the afternoon was spent socially. Luncheon was served by Mesdames Herman Draeger, August Ziehm, Ethel Schuler, Henry Schmidt, John Wilke and William Wilke.

Joseph Dapin of Madison is visiting a few days at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Max Dapin.

a man who wishes to build a new factory or store or even to put an addition on his plant. I recently wished to have a new toilet put into my building and was obliged to consult four different government officials to make this simple improvement. Employers must now secure city permits, state permits, federal permits, labor union permits, fire permits, smoking permits, and various other kinds of permits before they can spend a dollar!

Fewer Employers
Not only this, but people in the neighborhood oppose the addition on the factory because it will create more noise or something else. The time has come when parents must choose between having noise, smoke, and a job for their children, or no noise and no job. In the meantime, employers are saying to themselves, "What's the use? Life is too short." As a result, the number of employers is getting smaller every day instead of getting bigger as is needed in order to create new jobs.

But the above is not the worst. While the number of employers in the basic industries — food, clothing, and shelter — is rapidly declining, yet those engaged in promoting gambling, liquor, race tracks, slot machines, night clubs, and pulp magazines are constantly increasing. This is the most serious factor of all. The character of our young people is being undermined, while the men over 50 are being thrown into the scrap-heap. I am still an optimist for the long pull, believing that the American people will some day come to their senses. This "some day" must come very soon, however, if the unemployment problem is to be remedied under our current form of government!

stockholders. When labor leaders, however, think that they must get a little more each year for their members in order to hold their jobs and collect their dues, it is very dangerous. Wage workers should realize that their leaders may serve them better at times by urging a reduction in wages or an increase in hours. The current theory about hours is wrong. Reducing hours ultimately increases prices so that the net result is a loss in the number of jobs. Only as more is produced, is there more to divide.

(3) Restriction and regulation as to building operations and other new plans of employers should temporarily be lifted. Every kind of handicap today is placed upon
